FORMER GOV. BATES BATTLES COURT MOVE FOR DISBARMENT

Today

Chasing a Rainbow
Two Ugly Words
War Truths Displease
48 Years' Work. Thanks

—By Arthur Brisbane—

A FLYING MACHINE equipped with oxygen for high altitude will take Capt. A. W. Seaman of the Army Air Corps 20,000 feet up to photograph the moon's shadow sweeping across the Sierras next Monday during the sun's eclipse. Lieut. Corkillo will run the machine; scientists from the telephone company will go along.

Twenty thousand feet up the plane, turning sharply, will seek to follow with its camera eye the shadow traveling 1800 miles an hour.

Some day, when planes travel 1000 miles an hour, it will be possible to fly with the sun directly above the pilot 24 hours in succession. Scientists once laughed at that; now they discuss it. Later they will accomplish it.

In prohibition discussion, two ugly words, "rebellion" and "revolution," are heard. Rightly or wrongly, prohibition and bootlegging of prohibition are blamed for the crime wave and horribly overcrowded prisons, in one of which men were recently burned alive by the hundred.

A conspicuous college athlete and coach testifies that young girls drink as they never did before.

The daughter-in-law of the late Theodore Roosevelt testifies that, whereas young girls never drank, they nearly all drink now.

And she adds that public officials are hypocritical on prohibition, and she has seen dry officials drinking.

Pity a great nation, that should solve its drinking problem by common sense, self-control and conservative legislation, concentrating the attention of national, state and city government on whiskey.

William Mack, 48 years a letter carrier, absent only one week in 48 years, retires. His superiors shake hands with him and are photographed doing it. That's kind, but Uncle Sam might do more.

He might give William Mack and other faithful servants of [illegible] generous pension on which they could live comfortably when their hard work is done.

And without waiting for them to be worn out he might give them generous pay, which he does not do.

The richest employer in the world should be at least just.

In war everything on your side is beautiful patriotism, on the other side, horrible brutality.

Later, you look at war from a distance, and things seem to change. The British are outraged by a book called, "A Brass Hat in No Man's Land," written by the British brigadier, Crozier.

He describes revoltingly the execution of a British soldier for cowardice, describes drunkenness among officers and widespread immorality among men of all ranks.

General Crozier tells how British soldiers were made bloodthirsty by lying tales of German atrocities, to bring out the "brute-like bestiality so necessary for victory," and he adds, "the Christian churches are the finest lust creators we have, and of them we made free use."

The London Chronicle and other papers refuse to review the book.

Our newly discovered planet neighbor, circling around the sun far out beyond Neptune, is the most interesting thing in the news.

We are only a little more than 90,000,000 miles from the sun. This new planet, about the size of our earth, is 1,335,000,000 miles from the sun.

Multiply that by six and you will know, approximately, the length of the far-off planet's journey around the sun.

On that planet, you must live 3200 earth years to be one year old.

To see the new neighbor, look now. It will be visible with earth's telescopes only about a hundred years longer, and then be hidden for 3000 years while it finishes one of its own years.

Japanese custom compels each to speak with great humbleness of his own achievements.

The clever Japanese statesman, Wakatsuki, who got everything for Japan that he wanted, gave nothing that he didn't want to give, writes his government, lamenting his "inadequate ability," calling his work "regrettably insufficient," and winding up, "I am ashamed."

President Hoover got no such report from his delegates.

They, in the language of the race track, got "a Texas standoff."

They didn't win anything, but they escaped with their lives.

Neighbor Is Grilled by Police; Victim Was Informer; His Body Left Near Church

An "imported" gunman, police believe, murdered Joseph Collura, 41, of Mechanic st., Waltham, a police informer, early today and deposited his body in the driveway of the First Baptist Church, Waltham.

Collura, who owned considerable real estate and who himself was a convicted bootlegger, was the victim of a bootleg feud, according to the police theory.

When his body was discovered, more than $500 was found in [illegible] pockets, as [illegible] as a half pint bottle half full of alcohol.

Police immediately began questioning a neighbor with whom Collura is known to have had trouble over liquor transactions, one of which occasioned one of Collura's several appearances in court.

300 Girls Escape Fire

Buffalo, N. Y., April 25 (AP)—Three hundred girls, employed in the Remington-Rand office building here, were driven to the street by fire today, most of them making their way down the fire escapes.

Battalion Fire Chief Walter Mahoney was overcome by smoke and was dragged from the burning building by three of his men.

Twelve firemen were trapped in the basement and escaped only by dropping to the floor and creeping under the encircling flames.

Winter's backbone appeared today to be threatened at last with severe injury, as the mercury crawled up in the tube and warmer weather was predicted.

Although it was snowing in Burlington, Vt., and at Northfield, Vt., coldest spot in New England, the temperature was reported at 24, the 9 a. m. reading in Boston was 45 degrees, or 10 degrees warmer than at the same time yesterday, and showed a jump of 11 degrees from 34 at 4, 5 and 6 a. m.

LAUNCH FUND TO AID FAMILY OF SLAIN OFFICER

Dorchester Board of Trade Starts Raising Money for Widow and Children

While police redoubled their efforts to apprehend his slayer, the public moved today to provide for the wife and three children left destitute by the death of Patrolman Franklin B. Dwyer.

Many unpaid bills, $1.10 in cash and an overflowing cup of sorrow was the heritage of the martyred officer's family but steps were quickly taken to give financial aid to the heart-broken young mother and her fatherless trio.

Following receipt of $10 by the Boston American from an anonymous writer, the Dorchester Board of Trade launched a Dwyer fund with which this paper will co-operate in every way.

A few minutes after the fund had been established it touched [illegible], and $48 at this stage looms as a fortune for Mrs. Dwyer, who said she had just about enough money in the family "sick fund" to provide her husband with a decent burial.

FUND BEGINS TO GROW.

PRICES MIXED IN WALL ST.

New York, April 25—Leadership in the bull market today reverted to the utility stocks and the amusements, the same group which has been giving a spectacular performance on the big board since early in the year.

In the last hour the market showed spotty strength with prices mixed.

Stocks of chain stores were active and strong, as also were a few of the oils and specialties, but fresh weakness appeared today in coppers and specialties.

The gas light and power stocks broke away from the general list and resumed their headlong upward move. Brooklyn Union Gas jumped over 5 points to 171¼ and Consolidated Gas rushed up about four points to the year's high price. The rise in Standard Oil of New York carried that stock up around two points.

Wilson Returns to Police Headquarters

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, who had been confined to his home under doctor's orders ever since he was excused from the witness stand at the State House during the Garrett hearing, returned to his desk at police headquarters yesterday. He found correspondence piled high and spent an extremely busy day.

He appeared to be in far better health than at the end of his long grilling at the hands of Asst. Atty. Gen. Damon E. Hall.

Gift of Money Is Sent Family of Slain Officer

Moved by the plight of Mrs. Franklin B. Dwyer, wife of the murdered Dorchester patrolman, and her three small children, an anonymous sympathizer mailed a $10 bill today to the Boston Evening American.

"I'm sorry this isn't a larger sum," the donor wrote, "but I know that there are many others who will open their hearts and pocketbooks to Mrs. Dwyer and her three children. I hope you will be able to forward this and a lot more to the home of the man who died doing his duty."

The Boston Evening American, in co-operation with the Dorchester Board of Trade and the Merchants' Association of Dorchester, stands ready to aid the Dwyer family by publishing contributions of this nature. All donations, however, should be sent to the Dorchester Board of Trade, 204 Adams st., Dorchester.

HIDE CONGRESS 'RUM LIST'

Washington, April 25—Names of Congressmen known to drink liquor some of whom vote dry in opposition to their own practices, will not be revealed.

Definite announcement that confidential reports of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment mentioning members of the House who drink, would not be placed in the record of the Senate lobby committee, was made today by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana.

Walsh, while declining to discuss drinking in the reports, said they did contain "strictures upon certain people" and that they had only the most remote, if any connection, with lobbying.

The records were given to the association by Carter Field, who was employed by it to report on political conditions.

They were offered for the record yesterday by Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, but Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, objected to their introduction.

Blaine contended that they

TWO SISTERS ACCUSE HIM IN $14,500 ESTATE

Miss Butler Admits the Money Was Refunded After the Bar Association Filed Charges

Fighting against disbarment, former Governor John L. Bates, once one of the most prominent citizens in the Commonwealth, appeared as his own counsel in Supreme Court today.

The Boston Bar Association petition charged the venerable attorney with unprofessional conduct, and Robert G. Dodge, appointed by the court, prosecuted the case.

Cross-examining Miss Mary E. Butler of Wenham, the first witness, Attorney Bates brought out the admission that she had signed a paper requesting the Bar Association to drop the complaint against him.

It had been previously brought out that the $14,500 which Miss Butler and her sister, Blanche, had lost, had been returned to them after disbarment proceedings were started against Bates.

FOR INVESTMENT.

The two women are daughters of the late Horace B. Butler, president of the Enterprise Co-operative Bank of East Boston, and an intimate friend of Attorney Bates.

The Bar Association charged that the money represented the entire estate of the two women, and the fact that restitution has been made did not alter the unprofessional conduct of Atty. Bates.

Mrs. Butler testified under direct examination by Atty. Dodge that the $14,500 was turned over to Bates for investment in mortgages, but that she never saw them.

She said that on his recommendation the purported mortgages were placed in Bates' safe with the administration papers of her father's estate.

CHECKS MADE GOOD

From 1915 to 1923 the witness said, she received interest regularly, but that after 1923 the payments were not so regular. Between 1926 and 1928, according to the witness, she received three protested checks from Bates in payment of interest, but they were made good.

The witness said that in May, 1928, she wrote a letter to Bates demanding that mortgages, principal and interest, be turned into cash. She testified that a copy of this letter was the only one she ever made during 17 years of correspondence with Atty. Bates. The witness explained that she made a slight gramatical error and wrote a new copy.

Miss Butler said that during frequent visits to Bates' office prior to 1928 he always told her he was too busy to get the mortgages and show them to her, although at that time she did not suspect there were no mortgages.

HE CROSS-EXAMINES

On October 28, 1928, having had no response to her letter written in May, Miss Butler said she engaged the services of an attorney. On his advice she signed a petition citing Atty. Bates before the grievance committee of the Bar Association. She said she has since that time received in full the amount she gave Bates to invest.

Cross-examined by Atty. Bates, the witness admitted that his administration of the estates of her grandfather and father had been satisfactory, and that the investments referred to in the petition she had chosen herself.

ATTORNEY REGRETS

Referring to the letter of May, 1928, the witness denied she had the original and that it was never mailed. She admitted, however, it

OHIO CONVICTS' RETURN TO ORDER AMAZES PRISON GUARDS

QUIET IN JAIL FIRST TIME IN 4 DAYS

Guard Wilkinson Says Capt. Hall Refused Permission to Open Doomed Cells

Columbus, O., April 25.—Apparently accepting restoration of prison discipline, convicts in the Ohio penitentiary, where 319 prisoners lost their lives in a fire Monday, went to breakfast in an orderly manner early today.

Catcalls and hooting were absent and for the first time in four days the men marched with a firm, snappy step. Guards expressed amazement at the demeanor of the men who only yesterday were a howling mob, refusing to abide by the orders of their keepers and refusing to heed orders until their demands for the removal of Warden Preston E. Thomas were met. The warden was not removed however.

ANOTHER DEATH

The death list was increased to 320 today when Allen Bartelake and James Andrews died from pneumonia.

The board of inquiry transferred its activities today from the penitentiary to the office of Atty. Gen. Gilbert Bettman. A complete report of the investigation will be placed before Governor Myers Y. Cooper tomorrow.

When the hearing resumed convict witnesses blamed Captain John Hall for the great loss of life in the fire. They said Hall failed to order that the men trapped in cell blocks G and H be released. They declared that feeling in the prison against Warden Thomas and Hall was high.

Thomas Watkinson, one of the prison guards, declared that "all of the prisoners could have been saved if there had been system."

He declared he had never had a conference with other prison officials relative to plans for coping with a fire within the prison and that their was no fire-fighting equipment inside the prison.

BLAMES CAPT. HALL

Watkinson was on duty at the entrance to the ill-fated cell block when the fire broke out. He testified that he offered to open the block doors in the two blocks when he found there was a fire. [illegible] Capt. John Hall, in charge of the night shift of guards, told him "to [illegible] awhile." Although he made repeated requests for permission to open the door, he declared Hall did not authorize him to do so.

Somewhat later, Watkinson said, a colored "trusty" handed him a duplicate key with a request that he open the door. He said he promptly did so.

Watkins said he learned the guards experienced difficulty in obtaining the keys because prison officials appeared to be fearful that the prisoners would make "a break" if released from their cells.

Hubert L. Richeson, day guard, refuted testimony of other guards when he declared that the door to the ranges in which 318 prisoners suffocated, was open all during the fire.

HIDE CONGRESS 'RUM LIST'

quest to be passed upon by a quorum to the committee, which was not present at the time.

ENTERTAINED CONGRESSMAN

The committee today questioned Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, for the seventh day concerning its activities in behalf of repeal of the dry laws.

Examination of Curran was completed, and the committee adjourned until Tuesday, when William H. Stayton, chairman of the board, probably will be the witness.

The committee questioned Curran concerning expense accounts of Walter G. Hooke while working against prohibition at the Illinois and New York legislatures last year. Hooke is assistant to Curran and is the association's "political agent."

One of the items, as read by Robinson, showed Representative Igoe, Illinois, had been entertained.

Hooke's traveling expenses for one month was $1500, Robinson said.

Another item was entertainment of "Senator Starr," whom Curran said he thought was a member of the Illinois Senate.

Robinson said the expense account of Hooke last year apparently was $4427, based on a hasty computation. Curran insisted the money had been spent "properly."

WHAT CURRAN WROTE

A letter read from Curan to former Senator Wadsworth of New York dated June 21, 1929, said in part:

> "I enclose the letter from Capt. Stayton (chairman of the board of the association), which I showed to you here last week asking that you send a note to Marion Eppley of Newport, R. I., suggesting the advisability of postponing the purposed suit by the State of Rhode Island looking toward the throwing over of the Eighteenth Amendment as unconstitutional.
> "The United States Supreme Court has been extraordinarily curt and dogmatic in the uncompromising nature of its decisions and the absence of supporting reasoning by written opinoin.
> "The personnel of this court is the same as it has been for some time past.
> "The growing objection of Americans to o urfederal prohibition laws will probably reach a greater degree of general disapproval later on, thus providing a better background for court action.
> "When the break in the game comes, it may possibly be by court decision, but it may just as easily come in any of a dozen other ways."

Wadsworth replied that he had written Eppley urging "postponement."

More Divorces Than Marriages Rouse Denver Clergy

Denver, Col., April 25 (AP)—Reporting that more divorces than marriages occurred in Denver in the first 10 weeks of 1930, a committee of the Colorado Congregational Conference has called the situation "almost unparalleled in America" and wants something done about it.

The committee said 501 divorces were granted in the first 10 weeks of 1930, as compared to 431 marriages. A total of 325 divorce suits also was filed.

Several changes in the marriage laws of Colorado were suggested.

INVENTORS ARE SUED BY U. S.

Washington, April 25 (US)—After refusing for nine years to proceed against the alleged "radio trust," the government is today marshalling its legal forces against two government inventors who beat the "trust" in a fight for $20,000,000 of royalties.

Filing of federal suits in New York and the District of Columbia against Percival D. Lowell and Francis W. Dunmore was announced by the Department of Justice.

Lowell and Dunmore claim the basic patents for house current radio sets. Their claim was upheld recently by a federal court in Delaware, and $20,000,000 royalties for which they sued the Radio Corporation of America appeared within their grasp.

If today's suits for conveyance of the patents to the United States are successful Lowell and Dunmore will get nothing. The government would have the only claim against the Radio Corporation for royalties, lawyers pointed out.

Winthrop Legion Petitions Secretary of War to Aid Masterson

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley has been asked to act in the case of Francis M. Masterson of 90 Putnam st., Winthrop, the disabled YD war veteran, who must face a court-martial on the charge of war-time desertion.

Incensed at the ruling that Masterson must face trial on the charge, despite the circumstances surrounding his strange case, the Winthrop Post, 146, of the American Legion, met at a special meeting last night, and in short order sent off a direct appeal to the Secretary of War for immediate dropping of the war-time desertion charge against Masterson.

The meeting was called by Commander Frederick J. Clark after a committee of legionnaires had studied the facts in the strange case of the former member of C Company of the 101st Infantry, 26th Division, who is still carried on War Department records as "in service and a deserter," because he absented himself, without leave, from a debarkation hospital in New York 12 years ago. He left the hospital during a mental attack, it is admitted.

"It is extremely unfortunate and painful for me to prosecute this petition," said Atty. Dodge in his opening, "first, because of the past career of the former Governor, and, second, because it discloses a shocking misconception of the propriety of the relations between an attorney and his client.

"Under the last of the proceedings before the Bar Association, friends have come to his aid and made restitution, but that factor cannot wipe out his professional misconduct."

There were two counts against Atty. Bates, one charging that he obtained $14,500 from Miss Macy E. G. Butler and her sister, Blanche, of Wenham, and $7000 from another person.

ASK REWARD FOR CAPTURE OF COP'S SLAYER

City Council Is Requested to Offer $500, and the Mayor Approves

City Councillor Francis E. Kelly of Ward 15 the home district of Franklin B. Dwyer, slain patrolman, said today that on Monday, if the slayer was not captured, he would introduce an order offering a reward for his apprehension. The maximum the council may authorize is $500.

Mayor Curley issued the following statement this afternoon:

"The brutal disregard for human life and the lack of fear of consequences in the case of the slaying of Patrolman Dwyer represents a most appalling tragedy. The murder of Dwyer emphasizes the necessity for the most drastic character of penalties for persons found guilty of the commission of crime and for the adoption of a definite program of apprehension and prosecution which will make impossible the escape of any guilty person, as a means of preserving some semblance, at least, of respect for lawfully constituted authorities.

MAYOR PRAISES OFFICER

"I shall be pleased to approve such order for the payment of a reward for the apprehension of the guilty person as the City Council may adopt.

"The courage of the officer was in keeping with the best traditions of the Boston police department and reflects the character and manhood of the great majority of the men in the service of the force."

Because the Legislature recently passed a new law making provision for families of patrolmen slain in the line of duty, Mrs. Dwyer will have her choice of two systems of remuneration.

TWO PLANS FOR ANNUITY

Under the police department retirement plan she would be paid a lump sum of $2500 and $820 annually, the annuity to go to her children until all are 18 in the event of her death or second marriage. Dwyer contributed to the retirement plan and $60 which he had paid in was turned over to Mrs. Dwyer today.

She has the alternative choice offered under the new law of no lump payment, but an annuity of about $1133. The law provides $1000 for the widow and $250 for each of the children with the provision that the total not exceed two-thirds of the policeman's salary. As Dwyer was receiving only $1700 a year the amount in his case would be about $1133.

TRAIL SLUSH IN SENATE RACES

Washington, April 25 (INS)—Hoping to stamp out slush funds in this year's senatorial elections, the Nye campaign fund committee today called upon about 125 cnadidates for 35 senatorial seats to report regularly all campaign receipts and expenditures.

A corps of special investigators, meanwhile, were said to be en route to several states to investigate candidates who may attempt to win their way into the Senate on a golden flood. Senator Nye (R.), North Dakota, chairman of the committee, said the first task would be to check up conditions in Illinois, Pennsylvania and three other states, one believed to be Nebraska.

FEAR 16 DIED ON BURNED SHIP OFF R. I.

Ten Survivors Landed Tell of Disastrous Fire on the Freighter Thomas

Stamford, Ct., April 25 (AP)—Sixteen members of the crew of the Long Island Sound freighter Thames, plying from New York to Bridgeport, burned last night off here, were missing today and ten had been saved.

Nine of the ten were taken to Providence by the steamer Lexington, and one, picked up by an oyster boat, rejoined his family in Bridgeport.

Those missing are:

L. Harcourt, pilot; W. Anderson, watchman; H. Wescott, cook; W. Labarge, messman; J. McNamara, oiler, and H. Allen, first mate.

The others missing, all deck hands, for whom no first names were available, are:

Rafferty, White, Sweeney, Crawley, O'Brien, Conway, Mahoney, Warble, Shay, and Tyner.

The hulk of the craft, blackened by fire, was on a reef 700 yards off Tod's Point on the Sound Beach shore.

Although the water's edge for miles was searched today and a coast guard patrol boat cruised about the Sound, no trace of the missing men was found.

WOMAN GIVES ALARM

The fire-swept vessel, from which there were several small explosions during the night, was virtually demolished, and there seemed little possibility of salvage of cargo or equipment.

Mrs. Anne Larsen at Sound Beach saw the blazing craft and notified Sound Beach firemen as the vessel then was being steered in toward shore, which accounted for its being brought up on Tod's Point reef near the home of Mrs. J. K. Tod. Mrs. Larsen was of opinion that the craft was being steered by a helmsman who was striving to beach it before trying to save himself.

Nine Survivors, Rescued in Sea, Land in Providence

Providence, April 25—With arrival here today of the captain and eight others of the crew of the burned freighter Thames, it was feared 16 members of the crew perished when the boat burned to the waterline and sank in Long Island Sound last night.

The survivors were brought here this morning aboard the steamship Lexington, which rescued them off Captain's Island, Long Island Sound.

In addition to Capt. Robert Sherman of the Thames, who hails from Stratford, near Bridgeport, the following were picked up by the Colonial Line steamer Lexington:

Louis S. Hubbell, New Haven, first assistant engineer; Fred Sheiler, Fulton, N. Y., second mate; Walter J. Brown, Bridgeport, oiler; his brother, A. B. Brown, deck hand; James Power, New York, deck hand; R. Smith, Bridgeport, deck hand; Emil Salguero, New York, fireman; Atilano Marta, New York, fireman.

was found by Patrolmen Edwin Lovequist and Lawrence Tobin.

Two revolvers were found nearby. One had three empty chambers and the other was loaded. At the Waltham Hospital Medical Examiner West found two bullet holes in his back and one under his left eye.

Patrolman John Walsh reported today that he heard three shots a few minutes aft retalking with Collura in Main st., but that because several automobiles were starting away from a nearby dance hall, the policeman believed the sounds to be back-firing.

The two revolvers were examined for finger-prints, and because the fully loaded revolver, a 38-caliber police type Smith & Wesson, had a cartridge that was indented, where it evidently missed fire, police believe there were two men who ambushed Collura.

The gun from which the death bullets were fired was a 32-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver.

Find Happy Workers Make Better Goods

Unhappy workers are poor producers Prof. Edward Mayo of the Harvard Business School told members of the Consumers League at the Twentieth Century Club today. Seven years of experiments seeking the effect of fatigue among competitive workers on production have produced few definite conclusions he said, the most important being the discovery that happiness of employes makes for more and better products.

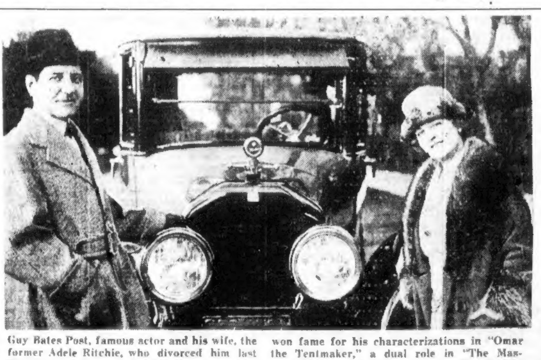
'Dresden Doll of Music Comedy' Dies in Double Tragedy Over Social Prestige

In a sudden frenzy, due to jealousy over social prestige, police say, Mrs. Guy Bates Post, the former Adele Ritchie of light comedy fame, shot and killed her friend, Mrs. Doris Murray Palmer, then killed herself at Laguna Beach, Cal., yesterday. This is a picture taken in Boston of Adele Ritchie in the heyday of her career as star in "The Cadet Girl," back in 1901, when she was 27 years old. (Photo by Chickering.)



Guy Bates Post, famous actor and his wife, the former Adele Ritchie, who divorced him last December, photographed a few years ago while on a motor tour. Their marriage in 1916 was one of the most interesting events in theatrical circles of the World War era. It was Adele's second marriage. In 1913 she divorced Charles Nelson Bell, to whom she had been married in 1910 at Greenwich, Ct. Guy Bates Post had won fame for his characterizations in "Omar the Tentmaker," a dual role in "The Masquerader" and other great plays. Adele Ritchie was long known as the "Dresden doll of musical comedy." Her first stage appearance was in 1893 in a light opera, "The Algerian," and later she headed the company until she became the star in De Koven's "Mandarin," Victor Herbert's "Wizard of the Nile"

This is another picture of Adele Ritchie, divorced wife of Actor Guy Bates Post, when she was the toast of Broadway in the early 90's as star in musical plays, including "The Cadet Girl," and later, "The Wizard of the Nile," with Frank Daniels. She divorced Post four months ago. Yesterday she killed her closest woman friend, Mrs. Doris Murray Palmer, and herself. (Photo by Sarony, N. Y.) STORY ON PAGE 3.

ADELE RITCHIE KILLS SOCIETY RIVAL AND SELF IN JEALOUSY

'SNUBBED' IN INVITATION TO PARTY

Ex-Stage Star, Divorced Wife of Guy Bates Post, Ends Life in Double Tragedy

Laguna Beach, Cal., April 25 (AP)—Two bullets, one in the back and one in the head, ended the life of Mrs. Doris Murray Palmer, Laguna Beach society beauty, it was found today by officials investigating yesterday's double shooting, which also ended the life of Mrs. Guy Bates Post, divorced wife of the well known stage actor.

Previously authorities had found but one bullet wound, that in the back, in the body of Mrs. Palmer, close friend of the former musical comedy star.

Officials attributed the double tragedy to jealousy on the part of Mrs. Post over social precedence accorded Mrs. Palmer here.

Their bodies were found in Mrs. Palmer's bungalow by Verner Rush and Mrs. Kenneth Browne who had gone there to restore Mrs. Palmer's pet dog which had been missing several days.

Mrs. Post's body was found lying on a revolver in which there were three exploded shells. She had shot herself through the mouth and brain.

IN SUDDEN RAGE

Mrs. Post, known on the stage as Adele Ritchie, was seen moving about the Palmer house an hour before the bodies were found.

Mrs. Palmer was believed to have been slain early in the afternoon, within 15 minutes of the time Mrs. Francis Berle, socially prominent here, had delivered an invitation to a luncheon that excluded Mrs. Post.

Sheriff Sam Jernigan said he believed the invitation fanned the jealousy between the two women into a sudden frenzy that caused Mrs. Post to shoot Mrs. Palmer and then turn the pistol on herself.

He said Mrs. Post apparently had been stricken with remorse after shooting Mrs. Palmer and that for two hours afterward she walked about the house and attempted to stop the flow of blood from the wound in her friend's heart.

Later she washed her hands, removing bloodstains on the bowl and towel.

Mrs. Post last year was director of the annual Boy Scout benefit play at the playhouse here, which is sponsored by Harold McCormick, multimillionaire son of the late harvester magnate of Chicago, Cyrus H. McCormick. This year Mrs. Palmer, because she designed the sets, was given the honor.

QUOTE DEATH THREAT.

The change in directorship, their friends said, caused them to quarrel. Authorities said that when Mrs. Palmer was supervising a dress rehearsal of the play Mrs Post was heard to say:

"I'd like to shoot her."

The play was to have opened last night, but the double tragedy caused the theater to remain dark.

Mrs. Post, born in Philadelphia 58 years ago, was the stepdaughter of Bancliff Pultz, who until his death, four years ago, was head of the J. B. Pultz Co., eastern representatives of Armour & Co. of Chicago.

Her first stage appearance was in a light opera, "The Algerian," which ran in New York in 1893. Later she headed the troupe. She played leading roles in De Koven's "Mandarin," in Victor Herbert's "Wizard of the Nile," in "The Runaway Girl" and "The Cadet Girl."

Then she starred in vaudeville for a few seasons. In 1910, despite her success behind the footlights, she filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of $15,249 and no assets.

Quick temper on several occasions brought her into the news.

Once she caused a scene in a New York restaurant when she found Meyer Sire, to whom she said she was engaged, entertaining friends. Sire failed to respond to a note she sent him and she approached his table. Angry words were exchanged, the table was overturned and Sire received the contents of a wine glass in his lap.

While playing in Chicago with Carter Le Haven, the actress quarreled with him and after the final curtain one night assailed De Haven with her fists.

A few days later the actor faced a $50,000 suit when Miss Ritchie alleged he had said "unprintable" things about her in the melee.

On another occasion she was in court charged with using profane language and resisting a policeman who arrested her for a traffic violation.

She was married in Greenwich, Ct., in 1910 to Charles Nelson Bell, whom she divorced three years later in Philadelphia. She announced before the marriage:

"I am marrying for money."

She married Guy Bates Post in 1916. Four months ago she divorced him in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Palmer, the former Doris Murray of Waukegan, Ill., was 32 years old and formerly was the wife of Dr. Clinton Foster Palmer of Chicago. She had lived here more than two years.

Mrs. Post came to Laguna Beach this year shortly after her divorce to live with her mother in a luxurious home on Sunset Hill.

Mrs. Palmer was married to Dr. Palmer in 1921. She was the daughter of Clarence Murray, wealthy Waukegan, Ill., pioneer. Dr. Palmer is known as one of southern Minnesota's leading physicians.

ter ave. added $10, and $1 each was given by Madeline Tattler, four, of 17 Kimball st.; Francis Thompson, eight, of 12 Norcham pk., and Mrs. Marion Tobin of 91 Hamilton st., in behalf of her son, Kenneth, six months.

Headquarters of the fund were established in the Globe Furniture Co., at 1496 Dorchester ave., and John Robinson, chairman of the Merchants' Association, is the treasurer.

DOCTOR TREATS MRS. DWYER

Plans will be made for benefit theatrical performances and the Boston American will print a list of the contributors and arrangements for the benefits. All contributions coming to the American from its readers will be turned over to Treasurer Robinson.

Mrs. Gertrude Dwyer, widowed at 25, spent a sleepless night at the home at 80 Granger st., where tragedy stalked on Tuesday morning. A doctor was called to administer a sleeping potion, but she obtained practically no rest.

Later today she went to the Hingham home of her sister, Mrs. Mollie McPherson, to complete plans for the funeral Monday.

The three children were taken by a neighbor, Mrs. Florence Buker, of 33 Clayton st.—Marion, 4, to play with her cart; Franklin, Jr., 16 months, to sit gurgling in a high-chair, blissfully unaware of sorrow, and the six-weeks old baby, Paul, for whom Dwyer called while dying, to sleep through the morning in his crib.

"We were just starting to clean up a few of our many bills. I had $1.10 in my bag and there's a gas bill in with it for nearly that amount," Mrs. Dwyer said.

"In our sick fund there's just about enough to bury Frank decently, and I don't know what we will do after that."

Despite every reason in the world to feel bitter over the blow dealt her and the children by fate and a ruthless gunman's bullets, she is "carrying on" with a courage as stalwart as her husband's.

"I'm all over being hysterical," she said. "I realize that I, too, have a duty now, fully as important as the one that sent my husband to his death. My children need me now more than ever."

Tragedy stalked through the Dwyer home just as an outlook which had been dreary for several years was starting to grow brighter. Dwyer, suffering the effects of gas and wounds received during four major engagement in the World War, had been out of employment for three years before his appointment to the police force in 1923.

"Hospital bills for both of us plunged us deeply into debt," the widow said. "Then the luck seemed to change. Frank improved, was appointed to the force and things looked rosy for the future."

But luck changed again when Dwyer walked fearlessly through the forced rear door of Spaulding's drug store in Dorchester Tuesday morning.

FUNERAL ON MONDAY.

The patrolman "comes off duty" tonight. His body, prepared for burial, will be taken from City Hospital, where he made such a gallant fight for life, to his Granger st. home, there to lie until Monday morning.

Burial will be from St. Ambrose Church, Fields Corner, following a high mass of requiem at 9 o'clock Monday. The highest honors of the police force and veterans' organizations will be paid the slain officer at his last resting place in New Calvary Cemetery.

Boston Police Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will send a detail of 20 men to the burial. A firing squad and buglers will participate in the services.

Three suspects in the slaying have been released and the search is now concentrated for the apprehension of a fourth, a man who "hitched" a ride on a bakery wagon from Neponset to a spot near the scene of the gun fight shortly before 4 o'clock Tuesday morning.

GOVERNOR PLEDGES AID.

The driver of the wagon describes his "passenger" as dressed in leather jacket and puttees similar to those worn by the man who shot Dwyer.

Governor Allen, pledging every resource of the State in the hunt for the slayer, issued a statement calling for a relentless drive against crime. He said:

"I feel very deeply indeed for the bereaved and stricken family of Patrolman Franklin B. Dwyer.

"In his death, which followed his being shot in the performance of his duty, we have brought home to us forcibly the imperative need for an aggressive and persistent drive against the desperado and criminal element in our community.

"Insofar as possible, every agency at our command should and will be employed in running down and summarily bringing to justice the criminal responsible for this dastardly deed."

HUNT FOR THE SLAYER.

Supt. Michael H. Crowley, in personal charge of the hunt for the slayer, has had but a few hours sleep since Tuesday. Nearly every inspector in the bureau of criminal investigation is working on the case and a description of the suspect has been broadcast throughout New England.

The slain officer's correct name was Dreyer, although he and one of his brothers have been called Dwyer for several years. The error in pronunciation made by new acquaintances became so common that it was easier to accept Dwyer than to be making corrections constantly. Dreyer is the name appearing upon all papers signed by the patrolman, however. The family is of Dutch descent.

NAB 'BOOTLEG' IN CHASE

Central Falls, R. I., April 25 (AP)—A 10-pound difference in weight stood Michael O'Brien, assistant chief prohibition raiding officer of Rhode Island, in good stead today. O'Brien weighs 210 and although it took him a half a mile to do it, he captured Antonio Goudis of Pawtucket, who was handicapped by 220 pounds.

The race, which was started from scratch, began when Goudis, carrying two cans of alcohol recognized O'Brien as the raiding officer who entered a yard through which the alleged bootlegger was making his way to an auto. Goudis dropped the cans, but O'Brien was on his heels and stayed there until he cornered his man.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No Need for New England to Worry

Editor Boston American:

Why should New England worry?

Fix your eyes on this news item and give a lift to your courage for the progress of New England! The Secretary of the U. S. Treasury is authorized to spend $315,000,000 for public buildings in the six New England States. This does not include the allotment already made for the new postoffice building in Boston.

Now "screw your courage up to the sticking point" the next 12 months. Unemployment be banked! BOB SMITH.

Good Government Praise for Curley

Editor Boston American:

I have had called to my attention your editorial in yesterday's Boston Evening American which contains one inaccuracy. It is not true that this is "the first time in its history the association had an approving word for the present mayor."

The Good Government Association has a unique political philosophy which many people do not understand—that every administrative act should be judged purely on its merit. This theory has resulted in praise for men whose election we have opposed, and criticism for men we have helped to elect.

During the first [illegible] months of Mayor Curley's second administration we repeatedly made favorable comments on his actions. Again in January of the present year we stated publicly "There is much that is highly commendable in Mayor Curley's inaugural address and in his first administrative acts."

I can assure you that as long as we feel it is consistent with principles of good government, and as long as it is in the best interests of Boston to cooperate with the mayor, we shall continue to do so.

Sincerely yours,

LAURENCE O. PRATT, Secretary.

Reflects on Manners of Woman in Hotel

Editor Boston American:

A high-powered, strong-minded woman of noted social attainment and of great fame sat near me in the large dining room of a Boston hotel one evening this week, engaged in ripping up the head waiter like a woman ripping up an old dress.

The melee was over the placing of an old man, somewhat unkempt in looks, needing a share at a large table which she was commanding with one solitary woman as her guest. The dining room was much crowded.

I heard [illegible] of the talk where I sat, and it was all over table manners. Why is it that a woman of her prominence will bawl out everybody around her, because she had to sit near an old man, who to outside eyes was as meek as Moses and stood this barrage of talk without lifting his eyes from the food he was consuming? I have traveled extensively in this country in my business, but never have I witnessed such a scene. Every one who noticed this affair had sympathy with the attacked. They would not stand for this out West. B. N. LUSCOMB.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Brighten up the Old South Meeting House! Brighten up the corner of Washington and Milk sts., where it is located. Give this memorable edifice a colonial coloring that will be featured during this Tercentenary year amid the din of traffic that flows by every working day.

There is too much history centered in this building to allow it to be neglected. Brush up the old relics there, the colonial furniture. Give a brighter tone to the clock in the belfry and make the steeple shine out at night with electric lights.

Let it be known that the Old South Meeting House still glistens with its historical sparkle through the United States that visitors may behold the shrine where the proverbial town meeting had its birth. HENRY H. HUTCHINS.

Obedience Lacking in Youth of Today

Editor Boston American:

What's the matter with the child of today? It does not care much to obey its parents. It is not moved to treat them with much respect. Mothers are treated with that kind of familiarity that is shocking to those who have to witness it, thinking of their attitude when youth was so different.

In going along Tremont st. I saw a four-year-old child have a fit of anger and deliberately kick and maul its mother. The mother was humiliated by the actions of the child and did not feel like administering any corporal punishment on a public street.

The old time mother with the old methods of raising children will find her plans of governing the modern child ineffective in training. Her daughter must not apply to her children what she was trained under by her mother of 40 years ago.

The new mother must leave a large scope of freedom to her child. She must encourage him to act for himself, instead of acting for him. He may have to suffer for his actins, but he is learning respnsibility. That is a great asset. N. T. L.

Terms Arms Parley Only a Waste of Time

Editor Boston American:

I would like to congratulate the editor who has so boldly and persistently written criticisms in regard to the present "arms conference" in the Boston American ever since the conference started.

I agree with those editorials when they declare that it is a waste of time and money for the United States to be a party to any such assembly. There are a great many of the newspaper reading public that don't give your editorials a second thought, if they read them at all, more foolish they. I have read Hearst's newspapers from coast to coast for quite a few years and can always find plenty of interest in them.

I read the other Boston daily papers also with some satisfaction, but this morning while looking at a certain Boston paper I saw a facsimile copy of the disarmament measure as drawn up by that congress and when I saw the list of ships that were listed to be scrapped by the U. S. I had to write this letter, hoping to go on record as one that believes as does the editor, that this conference is a lot of BUNK.

For instance, one of the ships in that list was the U. S. S. Bridgeport. Good night! A ship that has been laid up in the Boston Navy Yard for over 10 years, out of commission and useless, an interned German freighter, converted into a repair ship, used during the war on duty over seas. Sent home after the armistice to stay idle against the navy yard wharf.

I know the entire history of this ship because I helped put her in commission here in Boston in 1917 and served aboard her while she was in France. I left her June 24, 1919, while she was still at Brest, France.

However, I am not attempting to write her war record or my own, but to illustrate the type of ships that are slated to be junked as they are now anyhow.

The names of the other ships on that list don't matter here, but they are all of the same line of junk and so where is the logic in all this disarmament discussion?

I can only say again that in my estimation it is all a waste of time and money on the part of the U. S. to be drawn into any such controversy. Why should America be drawn into any foreign alliance?

What good are these signed documents anyhow? Consider what Germany said about these "Scraps of Paper."

When I read or hear about this "universal peace" I have to say "bolony." J. H. HILL.

Allston.

He Favors the Right Man in the Right Place

Editor Boston American:

Business can only have a healthy growth when an employer puts the right man in the right place, according to a speaker before a Boston Retail Association.

There is too much favoritism about placing of some men in positions, which they do not hold by their ability, but because they have a pull or are a graduate of a certain college or university.

There are many crude distinctions prevailing in Boston business connections that, were they to be carefully analyzed would make a hollow report or noise. Don't put a square man in round hole and don't put the scion of a wealthy family in a position in a business where he is more of an ornament than a working factor.

HENRY T. TILLOTSON.

Urges Curb on Noise Making Trolleys

Editor Boston American:

The matter of noise upon nerves is daily becoming more urgent. There is no question that loud incessant noises have much to do with the health of many people. Shell shock during the war was bad enough. Noise shock is growing right here in Boston.

To confirm this ask any physician who is treating the common jolts of human life from the study of nervous conditions. He will tell you frankly that even deafness is increasing on account of noises marking modern civilization. Some can stand this better than others, but there is no question that women are in general greater suffers in this respect than men.

Just notice the quietness of the Cambridge subway in comparison with the subway going from Park st. to Massachusetts ave. Stand at the Copley station of the subway and hear the banging, thundering, grinding noises of the electric cars. They are echoed far and near.

DOG WELCOMES WALES HOME

Windsor, Eng., April 25 (AP)—The prince of Wales returned by airplane today from his hunting trip in Africa and landed in what is, in effect, his own backyard.

The landing was at Smith's Lawn, Great Windsor Park, to which a private road is being built from the Prince's new country home, Ft. Belevedere, at Sunningdale.

With his return there was a general feeling of gratification among the British people that the heir to the throne was safely back.

The prince left Marseilles, France, this morning and completed the 800-mile flight in speedy fashion. His plane glided to a perfect landing and the prince found his brothers, the Duke of York and Prince George, there to greet him.

When he stepped out of his plane his little Cairn terrier, Cora, was one of the most enthusiastic welcomers.

Damon E. Hall Calls on Attorney General

Damon E. Hall, special assistant attorney-general for the recent Garrett hearing, returned from a vacation today and visited Atty.-Gen. Warner at the State House.

Neither would discuss the nature of the call and the attorney-general plunged into the preparation of his report to the Legislature after his special assistant left. The report must be filed May 1.

New Rule Safeguards Sea Travel

Maximum Load Line Must Be Marked on Boats Bound for Foreign Ports

Travel to foreign shores will be made under vastly safer conditions after September 2, as a result of a federal law which is to go into operation soon.

The law requires all United States freight and passenger ships sailing for foreign ports to have a "clean board" or load line plainly marked on the ship.

The Department of Commerce has designated the American Bureau of Shipping to put on the marks, which are cut into the side of the ship at the water-line of her maximum load.

If a department official, in clearing a ship, notices the load line mark submerged, he may bring proceedings against the owners for violating the safety margin.

About 25 ships in Boston are subject to this new law. The Eastern Steamship lines was the first company to have ships treated.

Some Boston ships already have such a maximum load line indicated, but their estimates will have to be made official. The law applies to ships of more than 250 tons, but another law providing the same regulation for coast-wise shipping is under consideration.

Great Britain originated this system, and named it after Samuel Plimsol. This "Plimsol line" is credited with having saved an enormous amount of property and lives. A statue is to be erected in the man's honor.

The disaster to the Vestris is believed to have been caused by overloading, which tends to cut down buoyancy and speed. This was a British ship, but the British waterline load law did not apply in American waters. After Sept. 2, all ships clearing for foreign ports from American cities must conform to the new regulations.

That Cub Again

The cub reporter said he was tired of writing humorous copy and wanted to try his hand at news for a change.

Here's his first item:

"Few people outside harbor circles realize that Capt. Frank A. Foote, of the tug Taurus, has been with the Boston Tow Boat Co. 54 years. For the last 19 years he has been master of the Taurus. His son, Capt. Charles Foote, of the Vesta, is out to beat his father for length of service and already has eight years to his credit."

Speaking of Records

Portland papers are making much of the catch of 200,000 pounds of groundfish by the Boston trawler Foam. This is claimed to be the largest catch of the season. It may be for Portland, but we remember the Breeze bringing about 225,000 pounds into Boston a few weeks ago, after making a new 1930 mark earlier with 193,000.

More Russian Coal

The Arden, of the American Export lines, is in port with 7098 tons of Russian anthracite from the Black Seas ports. This is the first American flag ship to steam into the Hub with this type of cargo, although several foreign ships have come in.

THE ARDEN WITH A LOAD OF COAL FROM THE BLACK SEA PORTS (AT NIGHT)

At intervals of 10 to 15 days, more cargoes of coal will come to Boston, Portland and Providence on American ships. Coal is on the free list.

Longshoreman's Gazette

CARL MORRISON, Editor

Vol. 1 No. 14

With more than half a million dollars as the stakes, two vessels are speeding to Boston harbor with cargoes affected by the new tariff soon to be invoked by the President.

The American Pioneer line, of which Rogers & Webb are local agents, has a ship due here, May 8, with 4200 bales of wool. A tariff of about two cents a pound is to be placed on foreign wool, and this means an added charge of $25,000 if the ship fails to beat the tariff.

The Exiris, of the American Export line, is due here next Monday with 10,158 bales of Egyptian cotton. The new tariff schedule will take this product off the free list and impose a duty of seven cents a pound.

Should this vessel be delayed until the new rate goes into effect, the duty will total more than $534,000, an average of $52.50 a bale.

President Hoover may set the date of enforcement at any time. Importers fear the new rates will be invoked without sufficient notice.

By examining back files of the Marine Guide, the Gazette learned that 25,117 bales of Egyptian cotton had reached Boston since the first of the year. The word had gone around that a tariff was impending, and importers brought in big shipments in advance. Most of the cotton went to Fall River, New Bedford and other nearby mill cities.

Another Superstition

Perhaps the ready-tongued Tom Yarrow can explain this superstition of his fellow countrymen. Scottish sailors long have believed that if a person on shore combed his hair at night, especially by candle light, his friends at sea would drown.

VETS' RELIEF BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Washington, April 25 (US)—Although the House has passed by the $130,000,000 Johnson bill increasing World War veterans' relief compensation, by a vote of 324 to 49, it is believed here today that the Senate, to which the bill now goes, will substantially reduce the amount or keep the bill in committee until next year.

Before the House passed the bill it adopted a joint resolution by Johnson creating a joint congressional committee to make a survey of veterans' relief legislation and report back to Congress by March 1, 1931.

Fearful that the relief bill passed may result in a treasury deficit, administration leaders hoped the Senate would ditch it until the investigating committee could report.

Predictions were made that President Hoover will veto the bill if it is sent to him at this session of Congress.

The bill, as passed, provides compensation for every disability incurred between the date of the veteran's entrance into the military service and January 1, 1930, if within that time a 10 per cent degree of disability traceable to war causes has become manifest. The government is to presume that the veteran's claims that his disease originated during war service are correct.

Provision is made in the bill for the government to give money to dependents of war veterans while they are in hospitals. Where a veteran has lost one foot or one hand or both feet and both hands in the war, he is to be paid $25 a month above other compensation.

BUTLER URGES SAFEGUARDING BAY STATE

Worcester, April 25—A plea for the strongest possible representation in Washington to fight for protection for Massachusetts' industries was voiced today by William M. Butler, former U. S. senator and candidate for the Republican nomination this year, speaking before the Worcester Kiwanis Club.

"During the present tariff discussion we have witnessed the effort of other sections of the country to deny to Massachusetts industries needed protection," he said.

"This emphasizes the necessity on our part for maintaining in Washington the strongest possible representation to contend for the interests of Massachusetts.

"Without a protective tariff many of our industries could not succeed, could not be successful, could not provide employment."

Quoting the familiar slogan "More business in government and less government in business," Butler said the Government has much to do with private business, supervision of railroads, National Banking System, Federal Reserve, administration of taxes and tariff and more recently farm legislation.

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Chapter 42

IT was cruelly unexpected, that plunge of eyes into eyes. Confusion in Ardeth's mind. Ken . . . really Ken . . . and he was holding a baby. . . .

Ken's first instinctive movement had been to leave. But he remained there looking at her.

"I didn't expect to see you, Ardeth. I was just passing. Just walking bay."

"Won't you—come in?" The words seemed to come of their own volition.

They were in the store, still in that strained silence. The girl was leaning back against the counter. One hand was pressed hard over her throat, where a little pulse fluttered.

"I was too tired to go down to the country today with Tom."

She spoke with an apparent effort.

"Yesterday was awfully busy. And there was the window to dress——"

"I saw you," he answered, with the same unnatural calm. "And I thought of that first time I came in here. When you were in the window arranging the ivory elephants."

With a fluttering movement of her hands she said. "The baby. I've never seen him."

"I stole him to take him out," Ken explained. "I have an idea he doesn't like his nurse. You know, even when they're very young they have likes and dislikes. Sort of starched linen nurse she is; eye like a hawk. Rapacious eye, you know. I know the colonel here doesn't like her."

The colonel . . . Something pitifully appropriate in the nickname Ken had bestowed upon his son. Nothing round and rosy—nothing babylike about the infant, which looked owlishly back at Ardeth. It was as though a little old man peered from behind the small features.

Phyllis Hawkin's words flashed back to the girl:

"The nurse said she pretty nearly killed the poor little brat from the first . . . the boy never had a fair start . . ."

A frail little thing; bones like a macaroni. A cold undertone to the tiny face. The eyes pale blue, with a strange set stare—an unearthly stare. Ardeth found herself thinking.

The resentment she had known was swept away in a gush of pity. A little cry broke from her. "Such a little bit of thing! Let me—"

She had it in her arms, the baby's stare regarding her brooding face.

"The darling—" she said softly. Her fingertips lightly caressed the milky little face. "The pretty little fellow—"

With a pang it struck Ken that no one had ever before used that inappropriate term to the child. Something choked in his throat, and he spoke with an assumption of lightness.

"Well . . . the colonel doesn't go in much for beauty. But he's bright as a dollar. I always manage to know how he feels."

That hurt the girl. Ken, lonely—trying to make up to the unwelcome mite for the love it should have had as a right.

"We slipped out for a walk before the starched nurse could stop us. I could see by his eyes that the colonel was bored. He likes to be with me. And somehow we came down this way. But I didn't dream of seeing you—"

"Where's Cecile?" She did not raise her eyes to his own. Ken seemed as young and helpless in that moment as the baby and the pull on her sympathy was dangerous.

Ken shrugged.

"Coralie Gaines' house party. I can't get on with that woman so —for the sake of peace I stayed away."

An awkward little moment of silence. Then Ardeth found herself saying in a choked voice:

"Would you . . . like to come back here and sit down?"

They were in the back room. She found herself sitting on the couch holding the silent baby. Ken had taken the chair opposite. By the light which slanted on him through the one long window she saw his ease of manner was merely a mask. His face was white and his eyes were bleak. If she had changed in this last bitter year, so had he. Little left of the triumphant youth she had given her heart in that long ago Summer. Here was a man, disillusioned—suffering.

Ken's eyes went around the room, noticing the simple, comfortable furnishings. They came back to rest on her face and such sudden yearning flashed there that she spoke hastily.

"Tell me about yourself . . . your . . . your business."

"Did you know I'd left Mr. Parker's office? I'm in for myself."

At her nod, he went on.

"It wasn't that he wasn't considerate. He's been kind. But that was just it. I don't want kindness! I want to stand on my own! To own my own success! I've got to have something of my own!"

Something badgered in his voice. She looked swiftly up at him. His head was high—not the gay, confident lift of other days. Defiant. His eyes were angry, bewildered.

He suddenly swam in the mist of her own tears. Tears which she tried, in dismay, to check. She saw that he had risen. Was reaching for her.

"Oh . . . Ardeth . . . sweetheart. . . ."

A little cry halted him. A little crow from the baby. Held in Ardeth's arms, he had been fascinated by the glitter of a tiny chain about her neck. His small, wavering hand had at last captured it and a scatter of tiny pearls sprinkled the girl as it broke to themselves. Ken stooped, gath-

The accident startled them back

ered the scattered beads.

"Really, it doesn't matter," Ardeth protested softly.

When Ken rose he was master of himself again. He made a desperate grasp after his self-possession.

"Have to get the Colonel home or the starched nurse will hang us both. We both thank you—shouldn't have done this, I know." A bleakness in that which pierced her heart.

"Apologize to the lady, you rascal, for plundering her jewelry!"

They were gone. The little shop was suddenly empty, with only the sunlight slanting in to fall on the mandarin coats and the bright feather fans.

Through the yellow silence Ardeth walked to the back room. She picked up the broken chain and let it drop slowly into a small velvet case.

She knew she would never mend it.

Balked in Marriage, Cook Hacks Seven

Shanghai, April 25 (AP)—Because he was refused permission to marry a maid in the same establishment, the male cook in a Chinese household today, armed with a meat axe, went from room to room and hacked to death his employer, his wife, their two sons, aged six and three, two servant-maids and a man-servant. He then escaped with his sweetheart.

Doctor Stoned to Death in Mexico

Mexico City, April 25 (AP)—A weird story of superstition and fear that ended in the stoning to death of Dr. Edgar Kuhlman, German scientist, at Amozac, near Puebla, a week ago, was published by the newspaper El Universal today. The paper, in dispatches from Puebla, said eight persons believed responsible for the savage murder of the scientist had been captured and probably would be executed.

SPRING COMES TO FANEUIL MARKETS

A downtown forest, rising out of the helter skelter of noisy traffic, sprang up today at Faneuil Hall as the touch of spring vied for favor with the victuals in the "Palace of Food."

The green array, rising out of the pavements on the South Market st. side, is an incongruous sight to the casual passerby, but is proving a haven to Mr. and Mrs. Suburbanite who are planning the annual improvements at home.

PLENTY OF SHRUBS

Everything from small shrubs to stately evergreens are included in the assortment of several firms, the changeable Fraser fir, golden thread cypress, Irish and Greek juniper, blue Colorado spruce, white spruce, Scotch pine, Canadian hemlock, arborvitae and the boxwood.

Fruit trees and tomato plants, hedge shrubs and lawn plants are included in the assortment.

MACKEREL CHEAP

Spring mackerel dropped in price during the week with many of the retailers disposing of shipments received from Cape May well under the mark of 40 cents per pound. Oranges remained high with 75 cents a dozen the average price for the juicy ones.

In the meat line choice lamb brought prices in the vicinity of 50 cents per pound, with prices that ranged down to 29 and 30 cents for the poorer grades.

Poultry was reasonable in price with turkeys around the 50-cent mark and broiling chickens averaging a pound apiece, selling for $1.59 per pair.

Princess Cecilie Visits Argentina

Buenos Aires, April 25 (AP)—The former Crown Princess Cecilie of Germany, accompanied by her sons Louis Ferdinand and Frederick, is visiting here. She was greeted upon her arrival last night aboard the Caparcona by the mayor and prominent members of the German colony. She is traveling under the name Countess Ravensberg.

NEW PLANETS MAY BE PARTS OF OLD ONE

Ottawa, April 25 (AP)—Dr. F. Henroteau of the Dominion Observatory announced today he believed the astral body photographed here six years ago and Planet X discovered by Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., were parts of one large planet which had disintegrated.

When the object was first noticed last week on a photographic plate made in 1924, it was believed to be identical with Planet X, but after computing what the position of Planet X would have been in 1924 this theory was abandoned.

The Canadian find and Planet X are both beyond the Planet Neptune, or about 40 times as far from the sun as the earth. They are of about the same magnitude and both have been proved to be in motion. Dr. Henroteau said his theory was based on the fact that a large planet at one time existed between Mars and Jupiter and had disintegrated millions of years ago. More than 1000 pieces of that planet were discovered by the Italian astronomer Piazzi in 1801, he said.

'Roxy' Will Manage Rockefeller Theater

New York, April 25 (US)—S. L. Rothafel, known to millions of motion picture and radio fans as "Roxy," will be the managing and production director of the mammoth new theater to be erected in "Rockefeller City," mid-town New York. The theater will be built by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and will be leased and operated by Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

Rothafel will leave the Roxy Theater, which was built for him, at the expiration of his present contract, a year from next March.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST FUR ESTABLISHMENT

POLICE RAPPED IN BAKER CASE

Washington, April 25. Inability of Washington police to solve the Mary Baker murder mystery was scored by Representative Mary T. Norton (D), of New Jersey.

Appearing before a House committee considering a bill to establish a police school here, Mrs. Norton charged that the Baker case has been "handled very clumsily to say the least."

Meanwhile the search for the murderer of the pretty Navy Department worker had reached an impasse, as Washington and Virginia police sought in vain for new clues that might lead them out of the dark.

Mrs. Norton said that in their efforts to solve the mystery the Washington police had "seen fit to publicly disgrace and ruin the reputations of the innocent."

"True, the so-called 'suspects' have been cleared insofar as the police department is concerned, but there will always remain a doubt in the minds of many through this broadcast of misleading evidence."

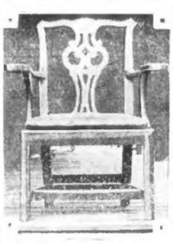
Daily Antique

No. 79



The arm chair shown today is another cherished old American heirloom belonging to a family identified with Massachusetts history since 1630.

The chair in most respects conforms to well-defined Chippendale design, although the arms are a departure conceived by the builder.

The piece is owned by Dr. Walter Gardner Kendall of 2 Park sq., Boston, who states that it came to him through his grandmother, Polly Sears, born in Dennis in 1797. It was apparently constructed years before Polly Sears' birth. The chair is of mahogany pegged construction.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of genuine antiques, particularly of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, provided the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

HOSPITAL AFIRE, GUARD SLAYER

New York, April 25 (AP)—A small fire in a building on the grounds of Kings County Hospital, Brooklyn, today brought four emergency squads of police armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs to ward off any possible rescue attempt of a man indicted for murder who is a patient in the hospital. No rescue was made.

In the detention ward of the hospital, overlooking the orderlies' dormitory, which caught fire, was George Small, gunman, robber, escaped convict, killer of a woman bystander in a fight with police.

Small escaped with George Barry from Auburn prison at Auburn, N. Y., last July during the revolt of 1700 convicts.

Three orderlies suffered burns and injuries in escaping from the burning building.

MORROW PLANS STIR ENVOYS

S. S. Leviathan, April 25 (AP)—Members of the homeward-bound American conference naval delegation today read with interest dispatches from Washington to the effect that Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador to Mexico, will be appointed immediately by Governor Larson of New Jersey to succeed David Baird, Jr., of Camden, who has been holding the senatorship temporarily.

While the ambassador continues to maintain silence on domestic politics, it is known that his plans are being held in abeyance pending conferences with national and State leaders. The only statement which he has made on the situation was last December when he said he would be willing to accept Governor Larson's appointment when he had cleared up his work in Mexico.

In view of the diminishing time between now and the opening of the campaign, it is not known whether Morrow will be able to make the trip to Mexico and it was said on his behalf that he would not decide this until after conferring with State Department officials.

The weather today was splendid and all of the naval party took part in deck games.

Looks Young, Feels Fine

"Eight years ago before my last baby was born, I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got such good results that I named her Catherine Lydia. I have six older children and five grandchildren, too. I am 44, but people tell me I look much younger. I am now taking the Vegetable Compound again because of my age. I eat and sleep better and I do all my housework, and my washing. I will do my best to answer letters."—Mrs. H. Dolhonde, 6318 York St., New Orleans, Louisiana.

HARRY POLLARD SIGNED TO DIRECT JOAN CRAWFORD IN 'THE GREAT DAY'

NOTED FOR HIS RIVER SCENES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, King Feature Synd., Inc.

San Francisco, April 25.

IRVING THALBERG knew what he was doing when he signed Harry Pollard as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director. Mr. Pollard has probably had more experience directing scenes laid along the Mississippi river than any director in captivity.

When he was with the Universal he directed "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and other specials with the Father of Waters as a background. M-G-M bought "The Great Day," by William Cary Duncan and John Wells, with a view to starring Joan Crawford as soon as they could get the right director. Who better than Harry Pollard could bring this stage drama with "Old Bobbie River" as a background to the screen?

Louella O. Parsons

Joan, who has developed into one of Hollywood's most dignified young matrons since she became Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will sing two songs written especially for her. And, of course, there will be Negro spirituals. Vincent Youmans has already prepared the musical score and it has plenty of plaintive melodies.

TRAVELING TO SAN FRANCISCO today is only a matter of a few hours. I took the Maddux plane at Glendale at 9:30 a. m. and reached the Bay City in time for luncheon after a pleasant trip through the clouds and a glimpse of California that one never gets on terra firma.

Just before I was ready to fly northward, someone brought me the information that Irving Berlin's production, "The Love Cottage," has been called off until next fall. It is now Irving's own idea to produce "The Love Cottage" as a musical comedy first for the stage and then later reproduce it in the talkies. The reason, I believe, is because he has promised Sam Harris a play by fall. Bebe Daniels, who was loaned by R. K. O. for the lead, will not be able to play in this United Artist production, since William Le Baron has other plans for her.

DOROTHY GISH arrives this next week to join her husband, James Renny. Dot has just finished a successful stage engagement and she probably will be signed by some enterprising film producer. Funny things, these movies of ours. Dot is a pioneer, she and her sister, Lillian, having started when motion pictures were in their infancy, but I doubt if her movie experience will help her a bit. It is stage talent that the producers seem to be seeking these days.

JAMES RENNIE has been signed by First National under a long term contract and he will have the leading role in Richard Barthelmess' next picture, a story written by Bradley King. You will see Jim Rennie in many First National pictures.

COLIN CLIVE

AS CAPT. STANHOPE IN "Journey's End," the war film epic at the Tremont, Colin Clive adds much to the fame he acquired in the same role on the stage.

RENEWS OLD FRIENDSHIPS

Capt. James M. Loughborough, well known to many officers of the Y.D. and decorated for bravery at the front, has been in Boston during the last week handling the New England premiere of Tiffany's "Journey's End," now at the Tremont. While here he renewed a number of war-time friendships. He, as a first lieutenant, took the famous trench warfare course at Harvard University, where the battle of Vimy Ridge and other famous engagements were fought over for the American officers, destined afterward to go to France with the 26th and other divisions.

He afterward came here as information officer for the American Legion, with the Legion party that was taking Marshal Foch around the United States. Loughborough acted as one of the American military aides to the Marshal of France during the trip, which embraced 20,000 miles, in a special Legion train. He also traveled in a similar capacity with Gen. Gouraud, "the Lion of Argonne."

Before becoming a showman, Loughborough was a newspaper reporter, having worked many years for the Hearst newspapers.

Stage Who's Who

An offer from Hollywood brought Barry O'Neill, Francine Larrimore's leading man in "Let Us Be Gay," at the Hollis, to America in 1923, but six months in the movie mecca on the Coast was enough for him, and he went back to the stage in a vaudeville sketch with Ethel Clayton, "The Joker." The end of the circuit brought him to New York, where he procured a role in "The Dark Angel," produced by Robert Milton. The play had a short run but O'Neill registered a personal success and soon found himself in demand.

ALMA RUBENS' VAUDEVILLE DEBUT

Sid Grauman, the great motion picture exhibitor, tells of a little girl who came up to him in the lobby of one of his San Francisco theaters, and said:

"I am Rose La France."

"Yes, that's fine," said Grauman. "What can I do for you?"

All the time the youngster stood on one foot, then on the other, and looked as though she were going to turn and run any second.

"I'm an actress," said she.

"What kind of an actress?" Grauman asked.

"I'm a quick-change artist," she blurted out, and started down the street.

The little girl was Alma Rubens, screen star, whose gallant, uphill fight for health and professional re-establishment is well known and whose vaudeville debut brings her tomorrow to the Keith Albee in person. She is presenting an act of satirical impersonations of prominent artists.

Years later, Alma Rubens told Grauman she had just read about a quick-change artist for the first time in the paper that morning and of her interview with him.

Even when she first went to New York to seek a picture position, every dollar had to count, for she had never made more than $40 a week. Loss of a week's work in those days meant actual want for the helpless little family. When they offered her $1000 a week, she thought they were crazy. That's when she, with Gaston Glass and Vera Gordon, made "Humoresque" for Cosmopolitan Productions.

It was at that time, too, that Ricardo Cortez first saw her. She was standing in front of a Fifth ave. jeweler's shop looking at diamond rings she never expected to own. Cortez was smitten on sight. He was breaking into pictures himself and he recognized her. But he did not meet her until some years later. In the meantime, she had married and divorced a screen writer. Then Alma and Ricardo met in the lunchroom of the First National studios and were married a few weeks later.

CRAWFORD IS SUPERB AT MET ORGAN

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

A master musician at the Metropolitan this week paints such glowing sunshine from that theater's new organ that a couple of western stars are paled into mediocrity. On screen, Richard Arlen and Mary Brian lose the laurels to Harry Green and others; but later Jesse Crawford brings consolation with his superb program, which happens to "christen" the magnificent instrument the theater has just installed. The word "mammoth," used in advance notices about the organ, had rather made us fearful of overmuch sonority. But Mr. Crawford makes it as gentle as a spring lambkin. He seems to be something of a wizard at the console anyway; in his hands the "giant" became as subdued and subtle as a baby grand. To his credit, he has no fireworks, no heroics; for you see, he is through and through, an artist.

Jesse Crawford

He began with Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue"; we liked the way he did it. Then followed too little of the "Blue Danube" waltzes; we would have liked to have heard the whole score. Perhaps, time limitations forbade. Tidbits from numerous pieces, ranging from "Volga Boatman" to "Should I?" made us realize fully this man knows his keys and stop and footwork far, far better than we do our motion pictures. Or our typewriter. He is worth hearing, and we will be frank to state that his playing pleased us mightily. Also, depending on the selection, touched us deeply. We could go back and hear him all over again; he is just that good.

* * *

The feature film is "The Light of Western Stars." Such light probably is a matter of who the stars are. The film is the once Zane Grey best-seller picturized; twice—or was it three times?—it was done as a silent movie in the old days. It has lost much of the dash that characterized it then, though it still has enough life to make it good stuff as a talkie "Western." Harry Green is the real star, and he sees to it that there is plenty of opportunity to laugh.

* * *

On stage Pat Rooney and his son, Pat, 3d, are starred in "Campus Daze." The comedians are supported by the Diane sisters, Cuby and Smith, the Fred Evans girls and others.

To Remake Silent

Tiffany will remake "Under Montana Skies" as an all-talker, featuring Kenneth Harlan and Slim Summerville. As a silent the picture was known as "Montana Bill."

On Stage Now

ALMA RUBENS

STAR OF "MAN" FINE films, Alma Rubens comes to the Keith-Albee tomorrow as part of her vaudeville debut.

Pathe Signs Up 5 Song Writers

Five song writers have been added to the Pathe roster under supervision of Josiah Zuro, general musical director. They are Ted Snyder, Henry Sullivan, Mack Gordon, Abner Silver, and Mort Harris.

"Devil's Playground"

First National has resumed work on "Devil's Playground" which was held up on account of a cold which kept Billie Dove from working.

FAVORITES IN 'HIGH SOCIETY BLUES'

Character actors and actresses play a prominent part in the cast of "High Society Blues," musical romance starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, now at the New B. F. Keith's. William Collier, Sr., Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda and Lucien Littlefield have prominent roles.

Collier, probably the most famous light comedian the American stage ever produced, has been identified with theatricals for nearly half a century, as an actor, director and writer.

Miss Hopper, who comes from a socially prominent family, left finishing school for the New York stage, scoring her greatest success in "Six Cylinder Love." She has been in pictures for seven years and has been featured in many productions.

Miss Fazenda, starting her career with Mack Sennett, has become one of the most popular character actresses on the screen. Littlefield, also a former stage actor, has been in Hollywood ten years. Among his prominent pictures have been "Bachelor Brides," "The Torrent," "Take it from Me," "Twinkle Toes," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Cheating Cheaters," "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "My Best Girl."

Screen Shorts

Victor McLaglen's leading lady in "Dust and Sun" will be Mona Maris. Regis Toomey and Mrs. Solidad Jiminez also will be in the cast.

* * *

Fox has signed Lloyd Hamilton for a principal role in "Are You There?" Beatrice Lillie is the star.

* * *

Opposite George O'Brien in "The Last of the Duanes" will be Lucille Brown. A. F. Erickson will direct for Fox.

* * *

Columbia has signed Dave Chasen and Tom Howard for "Rain or Shine," in which Joe Cook will be starred.

Some Girl

LOIS MORAN

AS AL JOLSON'S leading lady in "Mammy," now at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia. Lois again proves what a clever actress she is.

"Man Crazy"

Work has been completed on First National's "Man Crazy," which stars Alice White.

JACK SIDNEY OFFERS BIG REVUE

Famed as a stage master of ceremonies, Jack Sidney functions in that capacity and in many other ways in his own big revue, "Frolickers of 1930," this week's vaudeville headliner at Loew's Orpheum. Sidney is a versatile young fellow and always very amusing. As an indication of the popularity of this stage favorite, it is worthy of note that he was sent to Loew's Theater in Kansas City as master of ceremonies last season, scheduled to remain for two weeks, but he registered such a hit that he was held there for 20 weeks longer. He also enjoyed extended engagements in the Loew's theaters in Washington, Baltimore and St. Louis prior to the launching if his vaudeville unit show.

Jack Sidney

Sidney started his stage career as a boy when, after singing and dancing as an amateur, he was engaged by Gus Edwards to appear in his famous act, "School Boys and Girls."

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

H. G. Wells

Everybody knows that different animals come from different countries—the Platypus from Australia and Tasmania, the zebra from Africa, the marmoset from South America, the musk-ox from Greenland and Arctic Canada, and so on; and the same is, of course, true of plants.

But it is not always grasped that different regions differ in respect of whole groups of their animal and plant inhabitants. Contrast the three southern continents; Africa south of the Sahara (that sea of sand which is as much a barrier to life as any sea of water), South America and Australia.

All comprise both temperate and tropical regions; all have their mountains, forests and open plains. But their animal populations are extremely unlike.

If, for the sake of brevity, we restrict ourselves to the mammal population, we find that Africa is characterized by an abundance of antelopes of many kinds, by rhinocerous, giraffes, elephants, warthogs, zebras, lions, leopards, baboons and buffaloes, and, in the rain-forests, by gorillas and chimpanzees, okapi and many kinds of monkeys.

Farther south, the coneys, or hyraxes, and the extraordinary aardvarks are very characteristic. The whole giraffe family, with both giraffe and okapi, is found in no other region nor is the aardvark family.

Just as characteristic as the presences are the absences.

There are no deer, no beavers, no fieldmice, nor voles, no shrews, no bears and scarcely any goats or sheep (we are, of course, speaking only of animals found wild).

Contrast this assemblage of mammals with that found in South America. Here live llamas and their relatives, edentates, like the sloths, the true ant-eaters and the armadillos, primitive monkeys, with prehensile tails, vampire bats, peccaries, tapirs, guinea pigs, vizachas and agoutis, opossums.

None of these occur in Africa, and most of them are either wholly restricted to South America or, at the most, penetrate a little way into Central or North America. The whole order of the true edentates is confined to this region.

Finally, Australia (with which for our present purpose we must include the neighboring islands of Tasmania and New Guinea) is more peculiar still. Before the advent of white men it contained none of the higher placental mammals whatever, with the exception of bats, whose wings, of course, give them facilities for spreading denied to mere land forms, a few ubiquitous mice and the dingo dog, both probably introduced by the early human immigrants to the country.

But, by way of compensation, Australia possessed a unique menagerie (now, alas, rapidly dwindling with many species in danger of extermination if protective measures are not introduced) of the two lower sub-classes of mammals, the pouched marsupials and the egg-laying monotremes.

In point of fact, no egg-laying mammals occur outside this area and no marsupials, except the American group of opossums and one curious little creature called Caenolestes, with teeth in some way recalling those of the kangaroos from South Africa.

All the rest are Australian kangaroosand wallabys, cuscuses and phalangers, wombats and bandicoots, marsupial wolf and Tasmanian devil, pouched anteaters and pouched moles and pouched mice—some 40 genera, with hundreds of species. roos and wallabys, cuscuses and phalangers, wombats and bandicoots, marsupial wolf and Tasmanian devil, pouched anteaters and pouched moles and pouched mice—some 40 genera, with hundreds of species.

Add to this the platipus and its egg-laying confreres, the spiny anteaters, and you have indeed a strange zoo.

Now, it might naturally be supposed, and in the past often was assumed, that each species and each group lived in the region best suited to it.

But such is, demonstrably and obviously, not the case. New Zealand has no native mammals save a bat or two, and yet introduced mammals thrive and multiply.

Rabbits, for instance, have run wild over large areas, and red deer, introduced from Scotland, have not only thriven but have grown much larger than they ever do in their native land.

R. R. Suit Taken Under Advisement

Judge Sanderson in Supreme Court today took under advisement a motion to reserve for the full bench questions of law arising out of a bill in equity brought against the Boston & Maine railroad.

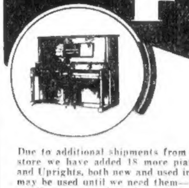
26 Pianos to Loan
FREE!



Due to additional shipments from the home office and release of additional stock in our Boston store we have added 18 more pianos to the sale, making a total of 26 pianos (Grands, Players and Uprights, both new and used instruments) to place in homes of Boston and vicinity and they may be used until we need them—which will be an indefinite time. A number of the company's retail stores have been discontinued and many of these instruments have been selected from our Norfolk, Richmond and Lynchburg stocks. Instead of storing these pianos to depreciate in value we are ready to take the loss now and have priced these instruments at greatly reduced figures and anyone contemplating the purchase of a piano in the next few months cannot afford to miss this opportunity. All pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families who are interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, and for the valuable advertising we receive by having good families use them. We reserve the right to select the homes in which these pianos are to be placed.

Many radios, phonograph combinations, phonographs and records will be sold at prices almost unbelievable

No cartage, no rent or any expense whatever. You must call at the store to make your selection. There are no strings to this offer, which comes but once in a lifetime.

BANK PRESIDENT TELLS CLUBWOMEN THAT BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

By NANCY BREWSTER

"Business depression and unemployment is slowly giving way to industrial resumption and by next fall the country will be past the stage of economic unrest and mercantile dissatisfaction."

It was not a spectacular change in conditions that Magnus W. Alexander, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, promised the women of Statecraft Institute. Rather, he assured that it would be a steady, sound growth and development in economic changes that would be relatively satisfactory to all people.

NORMAL IS ENOUGH

Alexander was speaking on "Our Industrial Problem, Present and Future" at closing session of the institute at the Women's Republican Club, presided over by the executive chairman, Mrs. Nelson W. Howard and the club president, Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs.

"I maintain that if we get back to normal, whatever normal is, not in terms of 1929 production, but what we consider normal for the people of our age and generation, we will be that much to the good by next fall," he said.

"I am strongly convinced that unless something unforeseen and unexpected happens in between, we have every reason to believe that by next fall we may look for a steady, sound growth and development in our business situations, which will bring about a satisfactory settlement for all people in industry.

PAST LOW POINT

"We reached the lowest point in industrial conditions the first of April. With the advent of warm weather, with the necessary influx of new business, there is hope for the better.

"Let us not be saddened by the stock market situation. If it is true that the stock market is a barometer of six months hence, then it fits into my prognostications.

MARKET CRASH

"I submit that the stock market crash of last October was not the cause of business recession, although the recession may have very likely been accelerated by it. The sliding business situation was one of the causes of the stock market crash.

"We were all in the speculative fever of the market and we failed to view business recession as we should have. We closed our eyes to these records of the last five months of 1929, so much lower than the glorious reports of the first five months, records which eclipsed the fallings off of the last period, and which helped to retain the glory of the grand totals.

RESTORATION IN SIGHT

"But we have reached our low point. We are beginning to emerge. It is the hopeful sign of production that the warmer season brings out corrective measures. There soon will be agriculture, which will take people into outdoor cultivation. The constructive industries are beginning to revive, and all around there is general hope of business restoration."

Alexander had a good word for the increasing mechanization of the day when he said it justified itself because it brought about "greater diffusion of wealth among the people."

Commenting briefly on the chaos of Russia, he stated hopefully that some day it would emerge from its misery, troubles and sorrows and work out a state socialism, which he said was nothing more than state regulation. This, he declared, would bring about freedom of competition, an end to combination and greater benefits to the people.

"Music is taking a new place in the world of science, of commerce, of education and of religion, and any national group desirous of devoting itself to the consideration of impending readjustments must move with the times," Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley, national chairman of the biennial music convention to be held in San Francisco next June, sends out as her first anouncement of the program.

Paris Sees Red—Also Green

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American

Paris, April 25—We are constantly seeing red—over here. We might say that red and green stand out as the signal colors, and they do. Of course the yellow peril is with us and will no doubt assume larger proportions as the season waxes. Black, of course, continues to be the staple color, more so than ever it would seem, particularly for evening wear during the early season, and for coats for daytime duty.

We have seen some delightful ensembles of red for daytime wear, in most instances the red being of a dark, but not too dark variety. The glaring reds are only affected by women who like their clothes not to speak but to shriek for them. Red, combined with black or white or beige, is also finding favor on this side of the Atlantic, and is much used to create some interesting ensembles, both of the dressy as well as the gracefully useful semi-tailored variety.

TO SHOW the continued importance of the ensemble, we show sketches today of a cleverly tailored model. It comes from that most interesting of couturiers, Louiseboulanger, whose clothes stress a happy, youthful note that make them eminently desirabe. The material used for the semi-tailored suit is a fine woolen in a tomato red with small beige dots. The revers are of a similar fabric, reversed in color-red dots on a beige ground. Scalloped set-on pieces form the cuffs and pockets of the jacket and furnish the motif for the appliqued piecing on the skirt just below the edge of the coat. A blouse of red crepe dotted in beige has a draped neckline tied in a loose bow at the front.

TO COMPLETE the tailored ensemble from Louiseboulanger, a seven-eighth length coat is worn. It is of plain red material, rather darker in tone than the dotted material making the suit and shows its relationship by the same scalloped motif used on that garment. On the coat the scallops are used to trim the cuffs and to form the pockets.

A Story of Some Folks Who Might Be in Your Office —or Your Husband's

[illegible] haired, vital, alive, young Anne Murdock was Eaton's [illegible] had [illegible] succeeded Janet Andrews. She had been [illegible] when her opportunity came. [illegible] Eaton's breadth and [illegible] Anne had ambitions beyond a suburban home [illegible] on her own rung of the ladder. She [illegible] the [illegible] of the only dreams she had [illegible] the Eaton home to help her employer's [illegible] charity [illegible] Anne was conscious of things which [illegible] but would never attain, beautiful material things. [illegible] Anne Murdock saw in her own home [illegible] that of [illegible] who had lately deserted that home for a career [illegible] A visit to her brother, Jim, supporting a wife and [illegible] salary, did not give Anne an attractive picture [illegible]

CHAPTER XII

I'm awful sorry to keep touching you," Kathleen told her with fleeting compunction after she had asked for a loan, "but it isn't as if you hadn't something put away."

"I know I have. But I'd like to keep it," Anne informed her. "There's nothing to this business of living up to every cent you earn. I've managed to save my raise and buy clothes and incidentals and give mother what's due her."

"But she doesn't demand it," Kathleen said. "She and dad get along beautifully. It isn't as if you had to help."

"It's just because she doesn't demand it that I want to," Anne replied. "I like her to have something extra. I wish she'd spend it on herself. If I weren't living at home, Kathleen, I'd be paying rent somewhere."

She drew a deep breath. She—oh, she didn't want to desert her people, of course, but to have a small place of her own, a small place with a little beauty in it, a quiet place, seemed more than ever a dream of heaven.

Now, faced with the fear of losing her position with Eaton, she was unhappier than she had ever been in her life. If she had gained the promotion merely to lose it again, she might as well never have left Sanders! He'd liked her work and said so, and she might have stayed with him forever.

Apparently, for a little added prestige, more exciting surroundings and a $10 raise she had imperiled her present and future safety.

Not Like Him

Anne Thinks Eaton Might Have Told

But the thing that cut was Eaton's attitude.

"He might have told me," she kept repeating to herself. "It isn't like him. He might have told me."

Whenever she was free to think of her own affairs she found herself reviewing mentally all the details of her association with him, trying to see where she'd failed, where her judgment had erred, where she'd hindered instead of helped. Of course, she'd made mistakes, but they'd been minor. And for all the mistakes Eaton had had no word of anger or impatience for her.

On Christmas Eve day Anne found a box of candy on her desk with Eaton's card slipped into the bow. She looked at it dully, her eyes filling with tears.

A box of candy! It represented so many pounds of cold poison if he had given it to her knowing that in the course of time—tomorrow; next week; a month hence—he intended letting her go.

Just before the luncheon hour Eaton called her to him, and she found him frowning at a scribbled slip of paper.

"Miss Murdock, I wonder if you could help me out here?" he said, and flicked a finger at the slip.

She looked at the slip, a scrambled affair. Names and addresses written in a firm hand, with penciled notes after each wavering and question-marked.

"Christmas gifts," explained Eaton with a groan. "Mrs. Eaton attends to our mutual friends and the servants, but these are acquaintances, business associates and the like to whom I give personally. I've made some suggestions, but you needn't follow them. Here's a list of the shops in which I have accounts. Could you take this afternoon to buy the things and see that they're sent by special messenger?"

"I'd be glad to," she said but her tone was cool and he looked up ruefully.

"I'm sorry I always do things like this—at the last minute," he said, and then asked with the first note of personal interest in his voice that she had heard for some time: "Get your own shopping done all right Saturday?"

Load Dropped

Eaton Drew a Long, Deep Breath

"Yes, thank you," Anne answered, thinking of the crowds and the press and the weariness of that afternoon.

Then she picked up the list—candy, flowers, books and hosiery fo rthe few women on it. Ties and socks, cigarettes and cigars for the men.

"I'll go right from lunch," she told him. "It needn't take long."

"I don't know what I'd do without you," he commented, forgetting he had been planning to do without her for all time. "Mrs. Eaton has so much to do for Christmas. I can't burden her with this, and I can't get away myself. Miss Andrews has attended to it for some years."

He looked at her and smiled and drew a breath as if a load had dropped from his shoulders.

"I don't know how I'd get along," he said again.

With this for encouragement, Anne took her business life in her hands. It might not be ethics, but her future was too important for her not to take the risk. She asked quietly:

"Mr. Eaton, has my work been satisfactory?"

"Perfectly," he replied and looked at her in astonishment, and then in misgiving.

"I suppose I shouldn't say anything"—Anne twisted her hands together with sudden nervousness—"but I couldn't help knowing that you have interviewed secretaries lately. One—a woman—asked me things. And I thought if my work wasn't satisfactory, perhaps you'd tell me now before you—"

He was as embarrassed as she was, and interrupted quickly:

"I didn't go about it very well, did I?"

There was something so absurdly crestfallen in this question that she had to smile,

NECESSARIES OF LIFE BOARD BACKED

Marshall Praises Commission That Senators Want to See Killed Off

The first kick-back to the recommendation of the Senate ways and means committee to kill off the special commission on the necessaries of life came today in a letter from Atty. Wycliffe C. Marshall of Watertown to Senator Clarence P. Kidder of Cambridge, [illegible] of the committee.

Marshall, counsel for consumers seeking lower Edison light rates before the Public Utilities Commission, asked Kidder's reasons for [illegible] for 10 years as a buffer between the consumers and the exploiters of necessity commodities.

"Did you know when your committee voted to report adversely on the two year lease of life for the Special Commission on the Necessaries of Life, how helpful this commission has been in the Boston gas and the Boston Edison rate cases?" Marshall asked.

"The commission has given me many valuable suggestions about coal, a large item in the cost of gas and electricity.

"I express my great gratitude to the commission for this assistance and now ask you:

"Is there any good reason why the Special Commission on the Necessaries of Life should be allowed by you to expire?"

Unless the committee's recommendation is rejected by the Senate the commission automatically will go out of existence on May 1.

CITY WORKERS' PAY RAISED

Overriding the veto of Mayor John J. Murphy, the Somerville Board of Aldermen early today passed an order for an appropriation of $20,000 to provide a 30 cents per day salary increase for city laborers, chauffeurs and mechanics.

The final vote came after the reading of Mayor Murphy's veto message in which he accused Aldermen John M. Gratton and John M. Lynch, sponsors of the measure, of acting in bad faith and of making political capital at the expense of the city laborers.

The mayor also charged the measure was introduced at "the behest of a disappointed politician" who was trying to embarrass him.

Lynch, in sweeping denial, asserted that he would demand an apology from the mayor in rtling a verbal clout with the remark that [illegible] see Hoover than Murphy."

Gratton described the mayor as a "student of camouflage" who would be a great help in the event of another war.

The order for the appropriation passed with a vote of 16 to 4, was introduced at last week's meeting of the board, approved and sent to the mayor for his approval. His veto followed.

The father was rushed to the Children's Hospital, where he submitted to a blood transfusion for his tiny daughter. The child, physicians say, now has a chance to live. (Staff photo.)

In the Boston Evening American reducing diets, average helpings of meat and fish are listed. Eat plenty of vegetables, fresh and cooked. One thin slice of bread or one potato may be included in each lunch and dinner menu.

Today Mrs. Baril discovered the whole den blazing. This time she called firemen, much to Eddie's delight.

No one set the fire today, because Eddie and his three brothers and sisters were all under the mother's eye throughout the morning and had not been near the den. [illegible] of the yesterday fire undoubtedly had been smoldering through the night. During the blaze Ladderman Thomas Burns received cuts on one hand when he broke a window.

MOTHER HAS PROBLEM

[illegible]

JENNIE LOITMAN BARRON prominent attorney and ex-member of the Boston school committee: "In considering the subject of the state income tax my thoughts go naturally to the problem of the mother and her children.

"After all it is the mother who must plan and ponder in order to make the family income stretch to magic lengths to provide for the many demands of her growing little ones.

"In these days of continual activity and opportunity every mother wants to provide her children with every possible advantage, so that they may go into the world and attain their highest ambition.

EDUCATION ESSENTIAL

"Education is the greatest essential of modern life. The maturing child entering the outside world must be equipped with all the knowledge and training that the community can provide for him.

"This means great expense for the parents through long years. At present the exemptions granted for dependent children are inadequate to cover the average cost of bringing up a child. Then too we must consider the growing cost of higher education.

"It is a splendid thing to direct the attention of the legislature to the hardships of the present state income tax.

MAKE UP DIFFERENCE

Certainly the average income could be greatly relieved of the tax burden without imposing too great loss in the revenues. The difference could be very easily made up from other sources.

"I am heartily in sympathy with the attitude of the Boston

GOODWIN CALLS 'PLOT' CHARGE RIDICULOUS

Dr. Lyons Claims Fin. Com. Head Schemes to Give Hub Schools to State

[illegible]

The only quarrel between the school committee and the finance commission is that the former wishes to spend $1,700,000 to build a girls high school, while the Finance Commission believes that that money should be spent to replace portables and old and unsafe buildings used for smaller children, Goodwin said.

Dr. Lyons certainly has his nerve when he addresses an audience made up of parents of children now housed in portables and tells them that any one is at fault but the school committee.

MILLIONS SPENT

School costs have jumped from $[illegible] to $[illegible] in [illegible] years, millions for shops, swimming pools, theatres, libraries, [illegible], machinery and abandoned school sites, while thousands of small children are still in portable and unsafe buildings.

[illegible]

Of the $[illegible] spent for schoolhouse construction," said Dr. Lyons, "I'll wager that $10,000,000 or $[illegible] was grafted or stolen from the taxpayers. If it wasn't stolen we wouldn't have this bad portable situation.

CHARGES PLOT ON HUB

There are men in this city who would destroy the Boston school system if they had their way. There is agitation to place the Boston school system under a state commission.

"It's a deep underlying plot of men who don't care for Boston or the children or the taxpayers.

This money was given not to persecute but to persecute the school committee. It will be spent by that paid agent of the state, Frank A. Goodwin, a man who changes his mind overnight.

ACCUSES COPS, BUT RETRACTS

Charges made by Ray Martin of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, that he had been asked by two police officers to testify that Vincent Consolo, 130 Hanover st., who was arraigned recently on a charge of operating a car under the influence of liquor, was drunk at the time of the arrest proved groundless in municipal court today.

The case had been continued by Judge Thomas H. Dowd in order to have the officers present. Today Martin denied they were the men who had approached him. Judge Dowd said he had expected this outcome and sentenced Consolo to three months in the house of correction.

On leaving the court Martin was arrested by officers from the Dudley st. station who charged him with driving under the influence of liquor. He was taken to Roxbury court for arraignment and the case continued to April 30.

"I have never attempted to dictate policy or program to the legislature for the very excellent reason that a majority of the membership represents a political party other than that of which I am a member and I have based the legislation presented by me purely upon merit."

he beat Burns [illegible] lost to Jess Willard.

Runyon Says Hart Was Lawful Champion

SO FAR as the Queensberry realm is concerned, the heavyweight title from John L. Sullivan down to Tunney is [illegible] as I read the legal documents on the subject.

I have always insisted that Hart was lawfully champion, if Burns was, and no one [illegible]

As I trace it, [illegible] the Queensberry [illegible] claimed it [illegible] years ago and was [illegible] Station, W. Va., by Paddy Ryan.

How and why Goss claimed the title would involve too much history, but his claim seemed to be accepted. Thus when Ryan and John L. Sullivan met at Mississippi City, Miss., in 1882, the fight was regarded as for the American heavyweight title.

Sullivan won in nine rounds and was considered champion of these states. In 1889 he cinched his claim by beating Jake Kilrain in 75 rounds at Richburg, Miss., which was the last bare knuckle battle for the championship.

Title Traced in Line of Unbroken Succession

SULLIVAN TO Corbett, Corbett to Fitzsimmons, Fitzsimmons to Jeffries, the line is unbroken. Then Jeffries' retirement, and the [illegible] of Marvin Hart.

Jeffries was [illegible] Tunney. [illegible] Burns to Johnson, Johnson to Willard, Willard to Dempsey, Dempsey to Tunney.

That's the way I run it. And now it will be Tunney to Schmeling or Sharkey. The world will recognize the claim of the winner just as [illegible] of any other champion in the long line.

It is always within the bounds of possibility, of course, that Tunney may return as a claimant, but if he has any lingering desire to retain the shadow of a claim on his old title, he had better announce it before the night of June 12, when the German and the American Lith crawl through the ropes.

Tunney Will Come Back If Sharkey Loses

New York, April 25 (INS).—Hype Igoe, internationally known boxing writer, writing in today's New York Evening Journal, ...

If Max Schmeling wins the world's heavyweight title from Jack Sharkey next June Gene Tunney will return to the ring prepared to dispute the German's right to wear the crown.

Tunney is in training. Not the kind of setting up business calculated merely to keep his waist down around the perfect thirty-six mark, but honest to goodness training. Were he preparing for a third fight with Jack Dempsey he wouldn't be working harder.

... his Greenwich, Conn., ... he rigged out a real gymnasium and there regularly he ... away at the heavy bag, the fast bag, skips the rope, tugs at the pulleys, ... twists the revolving bar that none of the power of his hands and wrist will desert him.

Tunney seems to sense what will occur if Schmeling should defeat Sharkey and romp off to Europe with the heavyweight title that was his and he is going to be ready.

He knows he will be called upon to go forth and bring back the good to America. He ... than Jeffries ... when Jack Johnson whipped little Tommy Burns and won the first big ... title.

Sonnenberg Keeps Crown After Thrilling Battle

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

CHAMPION IS FORCED TO LIMIT

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

Gus Sonnenberg is still king of wrestlers today as a result of his victory over Count Zarynoff in two out of three falls in their title mat battle at the Boston Garden.

Zarynoff won the first fall in 1 hour 4 minutes 40 seconds with a double arm lock, while the second fall went to Sonnenberg in [illegible] minutes, 45 seconds. A reverse body lift gave the honors [illegible] Sonnenberg gained the third and deciding fall in [illegible] minutes 10 seconds with a flying tackle.

It was one of the fastest mat contests ever staged in this city. It was [illegible] from the [illegible] swept into action [illegible] Sonnenberg's superior strength and aggressiveness wore his rival down.

The [illegible] of the ring a hero, the crowd went frantic when he scored the first fall, and kept rooting for him to win until Sonnenberg scored with the deciding fall of the match.

Zarynoff, as usual, gave a brilliant exhibition of wrestling. His amazing speed and knowledge of the fine points of the game at times made Sonnenberg look ridiculous.

The Count was particularly successful in evading the champion's flying tackle in the early part of the match. He would usually move backward swiftly, as Gus would plunge forward. Gus would then go crashing against the ropes or hit the canvas.

Sonnenberg Proved Too Powerful for Count

On other occasions the Count spread his legs wide and permitted Sonnenberg to pass through them.

In the matter of strength Sonnenberg was too powerful for his opponent. It was merely a question whether the agile Zarynoff could [illegible] down to defeat before the latter could overcome him [illegible] strength.

Fifteen thousand persons paid [illegible] to witness the tourney. The [illegible] lasted until after midnight, [illegible] action was so intense that [illegible] remained for the finish [illegible].

Zarynoff's speed kept him out [illegible] in the early part of the match. Sonnenberg repeatedly missed with his flying tackle. When the Count scored with the first fall in 1 hour 4 minutes 40 seconds the crowd gave him a tremendous ovation.

It is seldom that a wrestler has gained the popularity in Boston that has been attained by Zarynoff. The fall was scored with a double arm lock.

When wrestling was resumed Sonnenberg was more determined and didn't take as many chances as he had in the early stages of the match. While the Count was guarding himself against a flying tackle Sonnenberg pinned him to the canvas with a reverse body lift.

Famous Flying Tackle Finally Decides Battle

Zarynoff was jolted severely when thrown and lacked his old fire when he got back into action. Sonnenberg kept crowding Zarynoff. He then opened fire with a series of flying tackles. He backed Zarynoff into a corner so that he could not pull away from him.

Gus left the floor like a bolt, crashed into his opponent's body and dropped him to the canvas for the winning fall in 20m 11s.

In the semifinals Ribber McCoy and Stanley Pinto went 20 minutes to a draw.

Gagnon Starts Final Training at Chicago

Chicago, April 25. Jack Gagnon of Boston, who knocked out Tuffy Griffiths at Philadelphia a few weeks ago, reached here yesterday to open the final stage of his training grind for his 10-round return engagement with Tuffy at the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday evening.

Three rounds of boxing, and the usual battering of the light and heavy bags, rope skipping and calisthenics made up Gagnon's first workout at Barry's Gymnasium this afternoon, but even this performance made it apparent that the odds of nine to five which have prevailed against him will be whittled down to close to even money by the first of the week.

Bowen Out of Penn Decathlaon Events

Pittsburgh—Pete Bowen, Panther track ace, will miss a chance to try for the decathlon title at the Penn relays. Loss of weight during the winter will keep him out of this strenuous event. He only weighs about 160 pounds and could hardly afford to lose eight or 10 pounds.

TENSE MOMENTS IN MAT BOUT

Zarynoff gave the crowded Garden quite a thrill when he scored the first fall of the evening over Sonnenberg. Sonny, however, was too strong and won the next two falls. The above photo shows the Count as he missed clamping a hold on Sonnenberg's head.

SWIM STARS IN REDCROSSMEET

George Kojac, Albina Osipowich, Eleanor Holm and George Fissler, members of the last American Olympic Swimming Team, will appear at the Brookline Baths tomorrow evening to take part in the [illegible] annual American Red Cross [illegible] life saving championships.

Many other New York and New England champions have been entered to compete. Among them are Carrington Noel, New England breaststroke and Medley champion; John Osipowich, N. E. intercollegiate quarter mile; Mathew Carroll, N. E. schoolboy 50 yards; Fred Lee, junior medley; Gordon Connolly, N. E. schoolboy and 100 yards champion; William N[illegible], N. Y. diving champion; Philip Harburger, former captain of Columbia and present editor of the Intercollegiate Swimming Guide; Doris Carleton, former New England champion and record holder, and others.

Kojac and Miss Holm are national title and world record holders at present.

Irene Greehan of the Boston team is the only life saver who has competed every year. Donald Meyers and George [illegible] and Philip Harburger of New York are competing for the third time.

Four cities will compete: New York, Worcester, Providence and Boston. There will be nine life saving events with each city entering one representative in each.

In addition to these there will be five 100-yard swimming races, each city entering one life saver in each event. Two of these, the free style and back stroke, are for women, and the other three, free style, backstroke and breaststroke, are for men.

The first event, the freestyle carry for women, will start promptly at eight o'clock.

A's Release Tarr

Philadelphia, April 25. Manager Connie Mack has sent Pitcher Tarr [illegible] to the New York team of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

The release of Tarr, who was first slated to go to Williamsport, Pa., reduces the A's roster to 26 players.

Jack Conway Boosts Average in Mat Selections

Jack Conway increased his batting average when Gus Sonnenberg, his selection, defeated Count Zarynoff at the Boston Garden.

Jack also picked Diglane to beat Koloff, Boston to upset Yasko and Malcewicz to conquer Manninis. And they did.

In his other selections the bouts ended in draws.

Conway's 1930 record follows:

He [illegible]

"It was gossip, perhaps, but forewarned is forearmed." Nor could he tell her honestly, "You're much too pretty to waste your youth in an office."

"I? A change?" asked Anne in astonishment.

"Thinking of getting married," he explained. "Of course, it was to be expected. You're young and—" before he was aware of the [illegible] the truth [illegible] "so very pretty," he ended and halted, annoyed at himself as he waited between fear and hope for her answer.

"But I haven't the least idea of getting married!" repudiated Anne, wanting to laugh, feeling her heart lighter to a featherweight, wanting to remember what he had said. "And so very pretty," he said.

"You're not—engaged or anything?"

"Of course not. I—I shan't get married, ever!" announced Anne extravagantly.

Eaton drew a tremendous breath of [illegible] and found himself able to [illegible] at her, to tell her:

"Come, you don't mean that!"

"Yes, I do. Why, I like my work, Mr. Eaton," Anne told him, breathless with earnestness. "I'm an idiot over it, I like it so much, and I wouldn't exchange it and my independence for any man living!" she cried. "I can't imagine why you'd think such a thing!"

"Oh," said Eaton, "that's an old challenge! Still, if you assure me that marriage isn't in the immediate future for you I'll have to let the challenge go unargued."

"Well," Anne told him, "if I ever go crazy and change my mind I'll tell you first, 'way ahead of time."

"Good!" he said heartily.

It was their first purely personal conversation. Each was aware of [illegible] Anne rather tremulously, Eaton with a sense of mounting excitement [illegible] business [illegible]

[illegible] he told her.

"I am selfishly glad, of course. Please forgive my leaping at conclusions, won't you?" And in turn "I promise there won't be any more interviews. I couldn't stand any of 'em, anyway," he confided youthfully, experiencing a sense of happiness which transcended his natural relief at not losing a good secretary.

Did Anne keep her resolution [illegible]? Did Eaton continue to misunderstand his pretty [illegible]? Read the next installment of Faith Baldwin's story tomorrow.

More as Friend Than Sweetheart

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 26 years [illegible] been going with a man [illegible] two years. He seems [illegible] me, yet never shows me any affection and doesn't want me to show him any. I am of a [illegible] loving disposition, but try to hide my feelings.

He is not at all bashful and once said he thought more of me than of any other girl. Is it natural for some men to be so distant and practical? I wonder if that is why I care so much for him? JANE.

Your letter, which space forbids me to publish [illegible] suggests that this very [illegible] young man regards you more as a [illegible] than a sweetheart. Often [illegible] which begins with friendly companionship develops [illegible] but [illegible] doesn't seem to be taking the happy course. I have been going with a young man for about six months and every time I see him he keeps telling me how much he cares for me, but he never takes me to any place of amusement. STOCK SELLING IS WELL TAKEN IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, April 25 (AP)—The [illegible] presented a rather soft appearance during a greater part of today's session, but major speculative [illegible] seemed to be on the up[illegible]

Some selling came into the market at the opening as a result of the la[illegible] in brokers' loans and [illegible] in the volume of Federal Reserve credit outstanding, but offerings generally were well absorbed.

Heaviness was most apparent in the motor, motor accessory, steel and railroad groups, current earnings of which have making unfavorable comparisons with a year ago. Bullish [illegible] was most pronounced in [illegible] public utilities and a few high-priced specialties.

EARNINGS REPORTS

Corporation earnings for the first quarter [illegible] a large part of the day's [illegible] American [illegible] Terminal, Chicago Great Western and Maine Central showed [illegible] per share over [illegible] last year while Bethlehem Steel, Michigan Steel, Independent Oil & Gas, Congress Cigar, Union Carbide, St. Louis, San Francisco and Pere Marquette made unfavorable comparisons.

Foreign buying of copper continues in fair volume, but the domestic demand is quiet. Unconfirmed reports that copper was being offered for 13½ cents a pound or half a cent below the quoted rate [illegible] tended to keep domestic consumers out of the market except for immediate requirements, but there is a growing feeling in Wall St. that producers will make no change in the 14-cent [illegible] until a thorough test of the market has been made.

Utah Copper broke 5 points to a new low at 190, but the other coppers held relatively firm.

While [illegible] stocks remains fairly heavy, much of it is believed to be of a professional character. Operations for the advance are being conducted in a number of special stocks, earnings of which apparently had not been affected by the stock market crash and the subsequent business depression.

CALL MONEY LOWER

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, but again dropped to 3. Ingersoll-Rand broke nearly 7 points. Auburn Auto and United Aircraft sold nearly 5 points lower and Cutler-Hammer, Electric Auto Lite, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Detroit Edison, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, Advance Rumeley preferred and Canada Dry yielded 2 to 3 points.

Congress Cigar, National Cash Register and Republic Steel (new) touched new low levels for the year.

Vanadium Steel soared 9 points and Worthington Pump ran up 8 to a new high at 162. Eastman Kodak was marked up more than 9 points to a new top at 254¾. J. I. Case sold 7¾ points higher and A. M. Byers advanced 6 to a new top above 111.

American Tobacco B, Public Service of New Jersey, and Brooklyn Union Gas each advanced 5 points or more. Consolidated Gas, Shubert Theaters, Foster-Wheeler, Fox Film, Houston Oil, Standard Oils of California and New York, Gimbel Bros. preferred, Columbia Graphophone, Vick Chemical and Pathe A all attained new 1930 peak prices.

Continued offerings, on a downward scale, of the motor, motor accessories and aviation issues turned the general course of prices lower in the final hour.

Stewart Warner slumped to 30¼ to a new 1930 low, off 12 points, on the publication of an unfavorable earnings report for the first quarter. Auburn Auto dropped 13, Electric Auto-Lite 5, Bendix 4 and American Bosch Magneto and United Aircraft 3.

Reactions from the best prices in the previously strong issues ran from 1 to 6 points. Late efforts to stem the decline were made through a bullish demonstration in American Can and other leaders.

The close was irregular.

QUINCY MINING GAINS OVER $2 A SHARE

Quincy Mining advanced over $2 a share in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. General Alloy set a new high on the move. Stone & Webster added a point.

Maine Central preferred soared 4 points, Gillette gained 2½ and Mergenthaler was up a point.

Libby, McNeill, Libby dropped over a point. New Haven sagged over 2 and Wilson Jones was down 2 points. Point or more losses were shown by the following issues: Cities Service, Brown & Co. preferred, New England Telephone, Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred and Edison.

Gains of a point or more were shown by Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred, New England equity common and preferred, International Button Hole and Hygrade Lamp.

The outstanding amount of American Telephone 4½ per cent convertible bonds is steadily being whittled down by conversions. About $3,305,000 were exchanged for stock Thursday. Each $100 of bonds converted involves payment of $80 cash. Since Jan. 1 about $92,000,000 of the bonds have been so exchanged, reducing the total from approximately $218,000,000 to $126,000,000.

American Telephone has realized over $73,000,000 cash by these conversions. The balance of $126,000,000 will undountedly be exchanged before the stock sells ex-rights on May 23, since not to do so will involve a loss of principal which if present prices prevail at that time will amount to about $10 per $100 of bonds.

Illustrating the wide distribution among investors of this Telephone bond issue, the $92,000,000 bonds already exchanged for stock represent 63,000 individual conversions. Some 5000 conversions have been effected since announcement of the stock issue on April 16. All told, is is probably true that the number of holders of this 4½ per cent bond issue largely exceeds 100,000.

Newton awarded to Boston Safe Deposit & Trust at 3.28 per cent plus $1 premium, $250,000 loan payable Oct. 23. Other bidders were: Shawmut Corp., 3.40 per cent; Newton Trust, 3.435 per cent; Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, 3.44 per cent, plus $14; First National-Old Colony 3.415 per cent; Faxon, Gade & Co., 3.46 per cent, plus $5, and W. O. Gay & Co., 3.50 per cent.

WARNER MAKES NEW OFFER

New York, April 25 (AP)—Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., has offered to exchange one share of its common stock for each remaining minority share of the Stanley Co. of America.

The Warner Co., a notice to stockholders said, is desirous of discontinuing the Stanley organization so as to eliminate taxes and other expenses. The offer will expire May 31.

Contracts let for an 83-story office building, to be erected on the site of the famous Hippodrome Theater in New York at a cost of $30,000,000, raised the past week's total value of heavy construction awards for the country at large to $111,874,000, the second largest week this year, Engineering News-Record reports.

This figure compares with $61,685,000 for the preceding week, and with $78,324,000 for the corresponding week last year.

The executive council of the American Bankers' Association will hold its next regular meeting at Old Point Comfort, Va., on May 5 to 8.

The aggregate net operating income of the first 12 major railroads to report operations for March was $13,457,000, compared with $19,962,000 in March, 1929.

Aggregate increase in surplus and appreciation in securities since December 31 is $1065,368, equivalent to $.58 per cent in less than four months.

CURB MARKET LED UPWARD BY UTILITIES

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, April 25 (AP)—The recent selling movement on the Curb market slackened today and the market turned upward under rapid bidding up of several industrial specialties and renewed demand for leading utilities.

The oil shares, however, turned sluggish and the market as a whole remained rather spotty.

Driver Harris, American Hard Rubber and Bohack Co. shot up 4 to nearly 10 points in moderate transactions and Columbia Pictures, Acetol Products A and U. S. Dairy A reached new highs for the year with moderate gains.

Soft spots in this group were U. S. Gypsum and Wahl Co., the last named dropping to a new minimum for the year. In the high-priced specialties, Singer was again buoyant.

American Superpower was a strong feature of the utilities, rising to a new high for the year above 37, in sympathy with several leading utilities on the big board. Commonwealth Edison reached new high ground in a few odd lot sales, and Electric Bond and Share and United Light were firm.

In the oil group, Houston Oil was in fair demand, reaching new high levels. Vacuum was also firm. Cities Service, however, encountered further realizing. In the mines, Noranda encountered further selling, but held fairly steady.

Investment trusts were largely quiet. Goldman Sachs was again firm. Railway and Light securities declined a few points.

REDUCTION IN STOCK MADE

Boston Stock Exchange today was advised that the stockholders of Central States Electric, at the annual meeting, voted that the actual issued and outstanding stock of the corporation be decreased by retiring 6260 shares of preferred stock, 6 per cent series, 22,747 shares of convertible preferred stock optional dividend series and 28,432 shares of convertible preferred stock optional series of 1929, then owned by the corporation.

Under date of April 8, 1930, the directors voted the retirement as authorized and directed that the shares representing such certificates be duly cancelled and proper entries be made upon the books of account of the corporation to show the reduction in capital of the corporation by $5,743,900, the amount presently located to capital with respect to the shares so retired and ordered to be cancelled.

The directors also reduced by 115,643 shares the shares of common stock reserved out of the authorized and unissued common for conversion of the convertible preferred stock optional dividend series, and by 72,290 shares the amount reserved for the convertible of preferred stock optional series of 1929.

Ticker Talk

By THE WALL STREET SPECTATOR

Consolidated Gas

The impressive action of this investment favorite in yesterday's reactionary session seems to indicate that some deal of importance is hanging fire which should favorably affect the stock. The large block of more than 100,000 shares of this issue which was purchased by United Corporation is further evidence of the constantly shrinking floating supply which has made Consolidated Gas so responsive to buying demand. In comparison with the sharp upturn in other less seasoned utility issues, the market possibilities of this stock still appear favorable.

Air Reduction

The first quarterly report of this chemical issue makes pleasant reading for the market follower who has been beset by a long list of discouraging statements which have thus far come to hand. For the first three months of the year net earnings of $1,523,276, or $1.94 per share compare with $1,237,562 or $1.57 in the like period of last year. The vast strides that this company has made can be better ascertained from the results of 1928 when net earnings for that entire year were equal to $46.60 per share. Its recent action indicates that this stock is in a definite uptrend.

American Safety Razor

The steady growth in earning power of this company, which resulted in 1929 earnings showing a 36 per cent increase over the previous year, is further being borne out by the statement of operations for the first three months of this year. Net income was equal to $1.64 per common share, as against $1.25 in the like period of last year. The annual dividend of [illegible] share places an attractive [illegible] the stock based on current [illegible] valuations.

Atlantic Refining

With the unfavorable report for the first three months of the year out of the way, more aggressive action is being taken in this member of the Standard Oil group. The gasoline market has shown marked improvement over the weakness shown in the first part of the year.

Behind the Active Stocks

RADIO-KEITH EXPANSION

Radio-Keith is the pet of the Street at the moment. Those who are most important in the operation continue to tell of the management's plans for adding further to the chain of theaters. Pathe merger report is denied.

RADIO ACTION

Bearish professionals continue their efforts to depress Radio. They think if it joins Steel and others in turning irregular they will be able to cover their large short lines in a dozen or so stocks.

UNITED CORP. MANAGEMENT

The United Corporation is managed by the most powerful bankers and the leading utility magnates of the world. Its purchase of Consolidated Gas is further strong proof of the plans for concentrating control of all Eastern utility and power companies.

In addition to the coming higher prices for crude and gasoline, Standard of New Jersey is influenced by expectation that its natural gas properties will go in with those of Standard of California in a separate subsidiary.

Rumor that the Columbia Graphophone deal had not been closed influenced the afternoon selling. London advices indicate that agreement is nearer than ever before according to report in some brokerage offices.

UNION HEADS DENY TREATING IDLE UNFAIRLY

By B. C. FORBES.

New York, April 25—Do labor unions impose too heavy penalties upon members who lose their jobs, fail to keep up payments of their dues and later have a chance to get a union job but haven't enough money to pay not only back dues and assessments, but a fresh initiation fee of a hundred dollars or more?

B. C. Forbes

A complaint having been received, I laid it before President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and President George T. Thornton of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America.

The workman claims that it is unfair for a union to "cross a member off the book at the time he needs help most" after paying "as high as $3 to $4 per month dues and extra assessments." He adds: "The union will not allow him to work again unless he pays a new initiation fee, which is for bricklayers $103 and assessments. This robs many poor men of their bread and butter. The government should remedy this."

* * *

President Green, in his reply, states:

"The relation between a national union and the American Federation of Labor is purely voluntary. There is no power vested in the American Federation of Labor to enforce or compel action on the part of a national union or arbitrarily require a national union to conform to any course of action.

"Each national and international union makes its own provision under its constitution and bylaws for its members who are out of work, who become ill, who die, who through age or disability are unable to work. In a majority of instances the local unions of the national and international unions make additional provision for their members.

"In 1928 the national and international unions paid out in such benefits nearly $33,000,000. This total does not include benefits paid out directly by the 27,000 local unions chartered by the national and international unions."

Mr. Green recommended communicating with the Bricklayers' Union. This was done.

First Vice-President Harry C. Bates, replying, says in part:

"Our constitution and by-laws are always open for inspection. Our constitution provides for the payment of certain dues, and also sets forth certain rules in regard to suspension from membership for non-payment of dues. Any member taking up membership in the union subscribes to the constitution and by-laws, and naturally if he fails to pay his dues in the time provided for by the constitution he is suspended and dropped from the organization, the same as he would be dropped from any club, society or lodge, upon refusal to pay dues.

"No member of the organization need ever be suspended or dropped on account of inability to secure work, as each local union will advance to a local member, upon a request being made for same, a loan sufficient to pay his dues until he is able to secure employment.

"The dues of the International Union are $1.50 per month, per member. Any member who reaches 65, and who has 20 years of continuous standing, and who, on account of old age or sickness has no visible means of support, is paid $28 per month as long as he lives.

"Also, all members who have 10 years' continuous standing and are injured while actively engaged at the trade are paid $28 per month for the balance of their lives.

"The I. U. also pays to the regularly designated beneficiary of a deceased member a mortuary benefit ranging from $50 to $300, subject to continuous standing for a period of six months to ten years. The I. U. has paid out in mortuary benefits and relief to its members and their families $11,622,000 since 1910.

"We respectfully refer you to any contractors or employers' association in the United States or Canada as to the actions of our International Union in our dealings with them."

There you have both sides of the picture. The emphatic statement by Mr. Bates that no member need ever be suspended or droped because of inability to secure work "as our local union will advance to a local member a loan sufficient to pay his dues until he is able to secure employment" would seem to answer the complaint effectively.

At the Radio Dial

By THE RADIO EDITOR

CONVICT X46,812 is the man who sprang into national glory for a period of 15 minutes as a result of his eye-witness description of the Ohio prison horror early his week. There was a microphone in the prison, and through it the Unknown's voice told the nation the terrible story of live-cremation of hundreds of his fellows. The man is Otto V. Gardner, a Negro serving a life sentence for murder. He is 35 a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute and a church secretary in the prison. Today he is $500 richer, thanks to a check sent to him by William S. Paley on behalf of the Columbia System for his efforts in making possible this unique broadcast.

THERE SEEMS to be some doubt about one important item in tonight's Raleigh Revue. This program, as you know, is in two parts, of which some stations take the first half hour, other stations the second half hour, and still others both periods. WEEI takes the second period. In several press releases, George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" is announced as the closing number of the first period. The arrangement is for orchestra assisted by the Cantabel's Quartet. This would be interesting, if true. Inexplicably, however, there are other releases which announce "Mardi Gras" from Grofe's "Mississippi Suite." The ultimate choice lies in the laps of the gods ... presumably the Society of Authors and Composers.

MANY A WONDER has been wondered as to recent doings of Maj. J. Andrew White, one of the pioneer sport broadcasters and the first promoter of the Columbia System. Since the young genius, William S. Paley, took over control of that organization and brought it to its present spectacular commercial success, there has been little heard about White. He has, however, been acting in the capacity of managing director for Columbia. Now comes news of his impending retirement, effective May 1.

Maj. Andrew White

"The date marks my twentieth year in radio," the major states. "I want a good long holiday and freedom from all responsibilities. I shall retain my interest in broadcasting, but no active engagement."

BILLY JONES and Ernie Hare return to the Interwoven program tonight at 9 on WBZA and the Blue Chain. Their major effort is a topical song devoted to the miscellaneous merchandise found in modern drug stores.

WELL, that little Baby Rose Marie did roller-coaster stunts with her piping voice last night to such effect that you'd almost swear it was Helen Kane imitating a baby singing. She shared the limelight with Rudy Vallee in his Fleischman Hour. Rudy went still more collegiate by singing songs of the Alpha Delta to the tune of "The Old Oaken Bucket," "Home Sweet Home," and so on. Here's one man who has been able to profit by a college education.

THE CRIPPEN murder mystery in the True Detective broadcast was one of the best in this creepy series. William Le Queux, the distinguished writer, spoke briefly of his personal acquaintance with the sinister civilian whom Scotland Yard tracked down at sea in the early days of radio. Following its custom of using fictitious names, the principal character was called "Toppan" all through the broadcast.

IT IS a gift to be able to transmit a singing tone from a piano across the radio. This, Rudolph Ganz accomplished to a remargable degree last night in the R. C. A. Victor Hour. This great interpreter of Liszt played the familiar Liebestraum in the manner that has brought him tumultuous ovations in concert halls all over the world. His playing was even more brilliant, if such a thing were possible, in the same composer's Hungarian Fantasie. His co-star was Mme. Renee Chemet, violinist. Her Vivaldi concerto with the orchestra had all the sweep and richness of tone of the best of men fiddlers. In strictly solo work she was more than pleasing in her playing of the popular "Dancing Doll" of Poldini.

ANGRY WOMAN THROWS SIX EGGS AND HITS POWER TRUST

F. W. GRIFFITHS, chief clerk of the Federal Power Commission.
—International Newsreel telephoto

This is the man the eggs hit.

DR. RAY LYMAN WILBUR, Secretary of the Interior.

This is one Wilbur, all forlorn,
Who came to his office one September morn
And appointed the man the eggs hit.

MRS. MINNIE L. WARD, file clerk of the Federal Power Commission.

This is the lady who threw the eggs,
Who wouldn't be robbed by a couple of yeggs,
Who instinctively knew just what to do
And whose aim was straight and whose eye was true
And who wouldn't be "slushed" by the power trust's wiles
Nor let their agents plunder her files.
But who challenged Bonner and Downing, too,
And all of the power trust's motley crew,
And defied Mr. Wilbur all forlorn,
Who came to his office one September morn
And appointed the man the eggs hit.

FRANK E. BONNER, secretary of the Federal Power Commission.

This is Frank E. Bonner, the lady's boss,
And Frank E. Bonner is mightily cross
To think that a lady in his employ
Should have the temerity to annoy
The powerful power trust and disgrace
Mr. Paul M. Downing, who gave him his place;
For a power trust magnate might get mad
To think of his power trust getting in bad
With President Hoover, whose campaign
The power trust supported with might and main,
Or with one Mr. Wilbur, all forlorn,
Who came to his office one September morn
And appointed the man the eggs hit.

PAUL M. DOWNING, vice president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Corporation.
—Hartsook photo

This is Paul M. Downing, who went to school
With one Mr. Wilbur, and Downing's no fool,
For as soon as this Wilbur was set in his job
Downing hastens to see him ahead of the mob
And gets his friend Bonner this useful position,
"Secretarial Head of the Power Trust Commission."
And whenever this trust deserves investigation
Mr. Bonner gets up in assumed indignation
And asserts without quibble or circumlocution
That the trust is subjected to base persecution.
Thus Downing told Wilbur where Bonner would fit
And Wilbur told Bonner at what desk to sit.
And Bonner told Griffiths to go do his bit,
And Griffiths told Mrs. Ward curtly to quit,
And Griffiths, the man whom the ancient eggs hit.
Alas for poor Wilbur, all forlorn,
Who came to his office one September morn
And appointed the man the eggs hit.

JUDGE STEPHEN B. DAVIS JR., head of the formal lobby of the utility companies.
—International photo

This is Stephen B. Davis, who used to hold
A job paying six thousand dollars a year all told
Under President Hoover, till one summer day
The power trust quintupled his annual pay
To favor the President—also to show
The place where all good little power boys go.
For that's what they get for doing their best,
Like Bonner and Griffiths and all of the rest,
Including one Wilbur, all forlorn,
Who came to his office one September morn
And appointed the man the eggs hit.

PAUL S. CLAPP, former executive assistant to President Hoover.

Paul Clapp is a man who's a pretty fast mover.
He, too, was at one time assistant to Hoover,
Until by coincidence seemingly funny
The power trust engaged him at five times that money.
So he gave up his office with Uncle Sam
To help stop the building of Boulder Dam.
So Downing and Davis and Bonner and Clapp
All think that man Griffiths a terrible sap
For arousing the wrath of a lady with grit
And Griffiths' the man whom the ancient eggs hit.

Moral

The moral of this "House That Jack Built" affair
Is simply be honest and don't have to care
For power trust frowns or for power trust smiles,
And don't have to plunder the Government files.
For it's tough to encounter a lady of grit
With a couple of over-ripe eggs in her mitt
And it's tough on poor Wilbur, all forlorn,
Who came to his office one September morn
And appointed the man the eggs hit.

Power Trust Keeps Government Employees Good Boys by Prospect of Promoting the Faithful to Good Jobs

THIS is the story of an angry woman who threw six eggs at her boss. So would you. Have patience and read how it happened, for, strange to say, it concerns YOU.

Mr. Hoover and his entourage continue their refusal to cut loose from domination by the power companies.

Perhaps it is impossible, due to obligations incurred and favors accepted by this Republican Administration during the late presidential campaign.

One of the focal points of infection is the Federal Power Commission.

This Government body is entrusted with the important task of protecting the public interest in the disposal of the great public-owned power sites to private corporations.

There were two reasons why it was worth while for the power companies to control the commission that dealt out these priceless development permits.

FIRST, the power companies wanted the permits promptly ladled out to them and not held for later development by the Federal Government or any other public body.

SECOND, the power companies did not want the commission to be too nosey about the "investment cost" claimed by the corporations in these developments, since, by the law, rates could only be high enough to pay a fair return on ACTUAL investment.

To control the commission it was only necessary to control the secretary.

The commission itself, composed of Secretaries of War, Agriculture and Interior, met only half an hour each month—about six hours a year in all.

THE SECRETARY RAN THE COMMISSION.

Last year the old secretary of the commission, O. C. Merrill, resigned his $8000 job to take $15,000 a year AS CHAIRMAN OF THE AMERICAN COMMITTEE OF THE WORLD POWER CONFERENCE, a committee financed to the extent of $50,000 a year BY THE NATIONAL ELECTRIC LIGHT ASSOCIATION.

Incidentally, the favorite practice of the power trust is to promote key men in Washington to high-paid positions in the employ of the utilities.

For example, Paul S. Clapp, executive assistant to Hoover at $6000 a year, was made MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE NATIONAL ELECTRIC LIGHT ASSOCIATION AT $25,000 A YEAR, now said to be $35,000. Judge Davis, $6000 solicitor under Hoover in the Department of Commerce, now gets $30,000 A YEAR AS HEAD OF THE FORMAL LOBBY OF THE UTILITY COMPANIES; in 1928 it spent $400,000 trying to defeat Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals legislation.

Of course, the PROSPECT of such preferment tends to keep all the Government employees good boys, listening intently to what is suggested to them by Judge Davis' lobby, by Paul Clapp's association, and by the individual power companies.

F. E. Bonner, who succeeded Merrill as secretary of the Power Commission, was recommended to Secretary of Interior Wilbur by Paul M. Downing, VICE PRESIDENT OF THE PACIFIC GAS & ELECTRIC CORPORATION.

So Mr. Wilbur appointed him.

Everything went beautifully. Mr. Bonner REFUSED TO ALLOW EXPANSION OF THE COMMISSION'S ACCOUNTING FORCE, needed to enable it to investigate the huge claims of power companies as to "investment costs" in projects on Government sites.

Today $500,000,000 of such claims remain UNINVESTIGATED.

Then, when the Federal Trade Commission started to investigate the Power Trust and the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee started to investigate the Federal Power Commission, Mr. Bonner jumped up and publicly stated that, in his opinion, "THE POWER COMPANIES ARE BEING PERSECUTED."

Now come the eggs.

When Mr. Bonner was slipped into the commission there were other power company letters of recommendation besides Downing's.

Mrs. Minnie L. Ward has been for many years file clerk of the Power Commission.

She now makes the criminal charge that F. W. Griffiths, Bonner's chief clerk, set about to RIFLE HER FILES OF THE INCRIMINATING LETTERS.

It upset Mrs. Ward to the degree that finally she brought a dozen eggs to the office and, exercising rare restraint under the circumstances, slung SIX of them, with good aim, at Mr. Griffiths, who promptly suspended her.

Under direction of her husband, a lawyer, Mrs. Ward charges Griffiths with THE CRIME OF RIFLING THE FILES AND CHARGES BONNER WITH NONFEASANCE.

The charges, lodged with Attorney General Mitchell, were by him referred to Wilbur, who reports he is LETTING BONNER INVESTIGATE THE CASE.

Bonner sits tight.

He has done nothing but hold up Mrs. Ward's suspension.

Meantime, it is reported in Washington that power companies are booming Bonner as member of the reorganized Federal Power Commission.

PUT MRS. WARD BACK AT HER JOB GUARDING THE FILES.
